Mayor, board soften position, to help seniors incorporate

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

In an apparent change of heart by Mayor Taso Maravelas, Antioch seniors will be cut loose and village attorney Bob Long will help residents belonging to the senior center incorporate into an entity separate from the Village of Antioch.

Long said, "I don't want to negotiate something that seniors don't want."

When asked if the seniors would have to break ties from the village, Maravelas said no. "It's up to them and what they want to do," he said.

Over the past couple of months Maravelas's position has softened. He and a couple board members Bob Caulfield and Larry Hanson had expressed concern over plans to expand the current senior center, and caused the senior council to ask for a resolution asking that they not be driven from the current building.

Hanson argued that Dolly Spiering left the money not just to the current members of the senior center, but to all seniors in the future. Caulfield said he wanted to ensure the seniors got "all the bang for their buck."

Trustee Scott Pierce drew up a resolution stating that the current board would not try to move the Antioch Senior Center that was approved unanimously.

Resident Forrest Stahmer asked whether the seniors could be overridden.

Pierce said, "Any resolution, any action can be overridden, but I think we're trying to demonstrate that we won't."

Village attorney Bob Long said that the village board, as trustees of the fund, have to make the final decision on what is done with the Spiering money. "Like it or not, this is the way it is," said Long. "Particularly when the beneficiary is not an incorporated, recognized body, it's the responsibility of the board."

Pierce said the senior council had been encouraged to investigate the possibility of incorporating to relieve the board of the responsibility of overseeing the account.

. Maravelas's decision came after these discussions.

First steps taken in preparation for landfill's eventual use

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

First steps have been taken to prepare the portion of the HOD Landfill owned by the Village of Antioch for its eventual use as the zoning was changed from a combination of industrial and multiple family residential (M-2, R-4 and R-5) to open space (OS).

Last year, the EPA Region 5 completed the clean-up construction work at the HOD Landfill Superfund site in Antioch. The site now enters a planned 30-year period of operation and maintenance activities.

The zoning change will not preclude any of these activities.

Bob Silhan, director of planning, zoning and building for the Village of Antioch, said the land was not suitable for the zoning it had previously had.

"The village created the open space district," he said. "The village is taking the lead on the property it owns."

He said the measure would clean up the zoning map and call the property what it is.

According to the EPA, the HOD Landfill site is one of 1,300 sites on the National Priority List (NPL) that are among the worst of those on the Superfund list. Previously, Ron Murawski of the EPA said, "Ultimately, the site will be de-listed. It won't take the full 30 years before we begin looking at redevelopment."

The village owns the easterly 44 acres.

The clean-up project has involved excavation and on-site consolidation of about 25,000 cubic yards of contaminated soil from an area immediately northwest of the site. Additionally, significant upgrades have been made to the existing leachate collection and landfill gas extraction systems as well as improvements to the existing landfill waste-cap cover for the site.

Last year, a team assembled by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) made a presentation to the Antioch Township board of directors, the board of directors of the Village of Antioch and to the board of education of Antioch Community High School District 117, showing what the HOD Landfill site combined with a 121-acre tract could become.

"There are so many ripe parts of Antioch that be connected through the landfill," said Julie Bargmann, a landfill reuse designer from DIRT (Dump It Right There) Studio. "Think of this as an evolution from a landfill into a community park. The bad news is you have a landfill. The good news is that it's the largest tract of land near a downtown and could become the largest park in the county."

In other action related to the HOD Landfill, the board of directors of the Village of Antioch approved a resolution to execute a contract with Waste Management to accept and treat leachate as part of the resolution of the 1992 legal action between the two entities.

Trustee Dorothy Larson clarified that the leachate is not being taken now, but will at such time that it is deemed "safe."

Village engineer Jim Keim said, "We'll only be taking 5,000 gallons of leachate. It's a very small amount."

Route 173 corridor study at midway point

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

Residents weighed in on the Route 173-corridor plan, the first leg of Antioch's moratorium on development. A second public meeting is earmarked for July 10 during the combined planning and zoning board meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Bob Silhan, director of planning, zoning and building for the Village of Antioch provided the village board with a status report on the moratorium at its last meeting.

"Consultants and staff will bring some additional information to the board," he said.

He said this is not a formal, public hearing, but that he wanted to continue to get input from the community. "I hope there will be time at this meeting to afford that opportunity," he said.

Silhan said he had expected the study to be 50 percent complete by mid-July and that goal is just about on target. Projections for a complete report to both the combined planning and zoning board and the village board would be mid- and late-September respectively, he added.

Ducks to benefit Dist. 34 libraries

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

Not many people would be willing to house 5,000 ducks in a garage, but Kathy Johansen secretary of the District 34 Education Foundation hopes the first annual rubber duck race will be successful for three lucky winners and all the children within the district.

At 4 p.m. on the Fourth of July, the race will begin at Main St. and Sequoit Creek. The first duck to make it from the creek to the Hiram Butterick Sawmill will earn its purchaser $500.

Second- and third-place winners will take home $250 and $100 respectively.

'We really need to sell these ducks," said Johansen. "We're making a big push now that the Fourth of July is near."

Johansen said she and other members of the foundation, established to benefit all of the schools within Antioch Community Consolidated District 34, would be out in full force between now and then peddling rubber duckies. Look for them at local grocery stores and other gathering places between Friday evening and Sunday afternoon.

The cost per chance is $5. Checks can be mailed directly to the foundation. They should be made payable to District 34 Education Foundation, and mailed to the same name at 688 Woodcreek Drive, Numbers are assigned to individual ducks and coincide with ticket numbers.

Raymond Chevrolet is an event sponosor.

Johansen said, "The District #34 Education Foundation helps to support children in our community in many ways. We have established a curricular mini-grant program for the purpose of supporting innovative educational projects, approaches and ideas. The Foundation sets aside money each semester for the purpose of supporting good ideas among the teaching staff."

Some of the past curricular mini-grants rewarded include a third grade biography unit, fifth grade computer software titled "Inspiration," a second grade literacy program called "Ready, Set, Read!" and a river tank ecosystem housed in the Hillcrest Library.

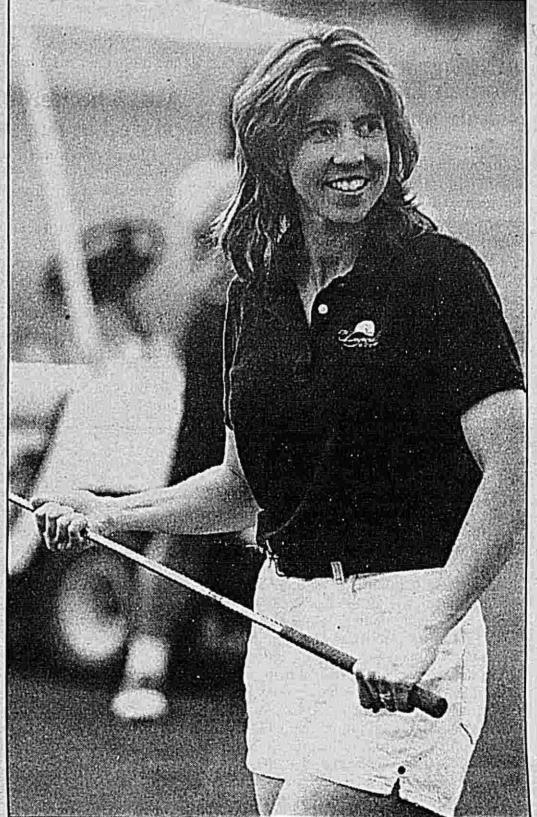

Additionally, the foundation has sponsored children in need by providing financial help to the parents of children who would not be able to attend summer school classes or any extra curricular activities.

District #34 Education Foundation is looking for opportunities to partner with business leaders to keep its educational initiatives moving forward.

Johansen said that like many school districts across the state, the district faces the challenges of educating a fast-growing student population with a budget that is not keeping pace.

"We're asking you to consider assisting us in creating a stronger educational system for the students in our community," she said.

Eagle Food Centers staying open, for now

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

Although Eagle Food Centers Inc. will close nine of its stores as part of a bankruptcy process, there are no immediate plans to close the Lindenhurst store, according to acting store manager John Zurawski.

"This store is doing very well," he said.

Nevertheless, the store's future is not guaranteed. The company filed for bankruptcy on April 7. Eagle's remaining 50 stores may be put up for sale through the U.S. no buyers are found.

Business manager's extension, pay raise normal

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter_

Supt. Dennis Hockney defended action taken by the school board to extend the contract of business' manager Bill Ahlers and increase his salary in doing so.

"He was scheduled for a 5 percent raise anyhow," said Hockney. "His contract was extended out four years, which adds two years and he will receive an additional 5 percent (total of 10 percent) raise for the last two years of his contract."

Hockney said the contract extension takes Ahlers to retirement, and that it is not uncommon to boost salary in the last two years.

"This is not uncommon in school districts," he said. "This is similar to the what is done with the Illinois Teacher Retirement System (TRS). Actually, that allows for 20 percent (increases) in figuring retirement."

The provisions are allowed for under Illinois Statute and the Illinois Administrative Code that governs the TRS.

Hockney said retirement figures are calculated by the TRS based on the average of the last four years of employment.

Ahlers contract will continue through the 2006-07 school year.

"This is just normal procedure," said Hockney.

In addition to fresh produce, you will find other homegrown items such as plants and flowers as well as a few vendors who sell crafts.

Adults aren't the only ones who can find a deal back on Skidmore off of Orchard. Children are invited to bring a toy to swap at the kids' tent from 5-7 p.m. as part of the FridayFest activities.

For those looking for a good deal on a meal that will also help the community, Sunday June 29 is the 9th annual Fire Fighters Association pancake breakfast beginning at 7.a.m. at the main fire station located at Orchard and Holbek.

This pancake breakfast has replaced the firemen's dance as the big fundraiser of the year. Money raised is used to help offset the costs of running Antioch's three fire stations.

"This way the whole community can be involved," said Lt. Chris Lienhardt, information officer for the Antioch Fire Department. "We are very fortunate that the community (comes out) the way it does. Some pancake breakfasts only draw a couple hundred people. We usually get 1,000."

Handicapped accessible van given to CBFS foster family

By BRENDA BAUN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

Thanks to an anonymous donor, Geoffrey and Kathy Hyde will find life a lot easier.

The couple, foster parents through Central Baptist Family Services (CBFS) in Lake Villa, were in need of a handicapped accessible van to help transport their foster son. A 1999 Chevy van with a wheelchair lift was donated to CBFS. The agency's senior vice president, Jeanne Wagner, selected the Hydes to receive the gift.

"They are very loving parents, who were willing to take a handicapped child," she said.

Their 4-year-old foster son has several physical and developmental disabilities. He cannot walk unassisted, and he suffers from a heart problem. His condition had the family going back and forth to the hospital for a period of five weeks.

This Lake County family was chosen to receive the van because of their commitment to offering foster care to those "difficult" placements. The Hydes are not only caring for this handicapped child, but also provided a home for 7 months for a girl who needed to finish her last year at Grant High School, who would have been displaced otherwise.

Besides foster children, the Hydes have raised six biological children, and are providing family care for a grandson.

"Teenagers, sibling groups and handicapped children are our most difficult placements," said Wagner. She noted that the agency is always looking for families willing to accept such children.

For information about foster care, cal 847-356-2436.

Parks friends schedule summer projects

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

Members of the parks board have selected locations for monthly Friends of the Parks clean up sessions taking place on the last Saturday of the month through the summer, and possibly into the fall depending on the weather.

The next work session has been scheduled for June 28 at Petersen Park, just east of the bowling alley on Route 173. Residents and park users are encouraged to come with a willing attitude as well as a couple of tools to help with the clean-up effort.

"It's helpful for those who want to help out to bring their own gloves and possibly a rake or shovel or wheelbarrow," said Laurie Stahl, director of the parks department. Each park board member is responsible for one park, to ensure the parks are regularly checked for anything being overlooked. The park with the longest to-do list was selected as the site of this first project.

Other summer work sessions are scheduled for July 26 at the Gages Brothers and Hirara Butterick Sawmill Park and on Aug. 30 at Williams Park.

Stahl added, "We're hoping that people will come out in numbers between 9 a.m., noon to help us with this project, and the other projects we have scheduled for the summer."

Participation in Friends of the Parks projects is open to anyone wishing to help care for and preserve Antioch's parks for residents in the years to come.

For more information, call the parks office at 847-395-2160.

Sheriff urges safe Fourth of July celebration

As the Fourth of July approaches, Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re encourages a safe, festive holiday.

He said there are countless fireworks and other explosive devices available. It is important to remember most of these are illegal, and all of them can be dangerous, he said. While the possession of illegal fireworks and explosives in Illinois is punishable by a fine, imprisonment or both, Del Re said the main emphasis on this holiday's enforcement of these laws pertains to safety.

In a report filed by the Center for Disease Control (CDC), an estimated 11,000 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms across the country in 2000 for fireworks-related injuries. About 50 percent of those injured

All adults, especially parents, are being asked to refrain from the use of illegal fireworks to ensure the safety of their children or other bystanders.

'Royal Wave' wins cardboard boat race

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

Lake Villa's "queens" turned out to be the queens of the Third Annual Lake Villa Cardboard Boat Race, the final event in the three-day-long Celebration of summer at Lehmann Park.

Awards for first place in the Adult Division and "Most Creative Theme" went to the "S.S. Royal Wave."

The boat, pre-constructed before the race, was decorated in royal blue and silver, with a crown riding atop it. Jessica Marro, (Miss Lake Villa 2002/Miss Lake County Fair 2002) and Stephanie Corcilius (Junior Miss Lake Villa 2002) handled the oars, while Lisa Battistone (Little Miss Lake Villa 2002) performed the royal task of the "elbow-elbow-wrist-wrist" wave.

Although the queens did not wear their tiaras, they did wear gowns and Burger King paper crowns—in keeping with the paper boat theme.

The boat was categorized in the "Adult" class because its oldest crew ember was over 17. The crew members' ages are (respectively) 19, 14 and 9.

First place in the Junior Division (13-16) went to Daniel Sell (14) and Myler Thorubulge (13), under the name Rainbow Racers.

Second place in the division received the "Most Original Design" award for "Nebuchadnezzer, crewed by Megan Venturi(14) and Chani Bockwinkle (14).

A boat, inauspiciously named "Death Trap," defied its own expectation, and came in first in the Youth Division (7-12). It was piloted by Ben Venturi (11) and Kyle Manninen (11).

Last year, Ben's ship sank. This year, Ben trimmed his payload by firing crewmember Dan Venturi. Dan, father to Ben and Megan, is also Lake Villa Township supervisor. The township sponsored this year's boat races.

Romei Johnson (11) won the People's Choice award for "Cartoon Network."

The "Most Spectacular Sinking" award went to "Kroozers Krew," piloted by Chrissy Rehm (12) and Ashley Sagel (8), representing the producers of this year's car show, held in the morning, just before the boat races.

"Their raft made of carpet rolls was disintegrating under them, but the kids kept rowing, even when it got down to just one roll," said Dan Venturi.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Value of seniors

As a member of the Antioch Senior Center, I would like to make the following comments. Our Senior Center, under the direction of Paul Howard, was judged the best managed center in the state of Illinois. Our membership of more than 350 comes not only from Antioch, but from bordering towns as well.

On a normal Thursday, there are more than 100 members playing bridge and pinochle. One of our members, Dolly Spering, enjoyed herself so much as a member that when she passed away, she left $1.5 million to the Antioch Senior Center.

The Village of Antioch, due to mismanagement by past administration, found itself in financial difficulties, so the senior funds were used to pay for work done at the police department, as well as the fire department.

Fortunately, the senior center had these funds available to be used to help the village.

So I say to those of you who are still bent on closing down the senior center that as sure as God made little green apples, you too shall grow old and then-where will you go?

Build it and they will come

By JOHN PHELPS Sports Editor

The hunger and excitement of winning a conference title has apparently stepped to the forefront once again.

Three years ago, the Antioch Emmons Grade School eighth-grade boy's basketball team proudly hoisted the Lakes Athletic Conference championship trophy.

Now, incoming sixth, seventh and eighthgrade boys are getting a jump on things in preparation for next season.

And building that winning tradition is one of the goals for head coach Dan Wiegel, who will be entering his third year as head of the seventh and eighth-grade boys teams.

"Prior to this summer, there were pick-up games for the kids to play in. But now, we want to get them in here so they can learn and polish some of the basic skills," said Wiegel on the two-week long camp.

Wiegel, somewhat of a novice when it comes to hoops, has benefited from two good friends that have helped instruct the camp.

"I learned from the former Emmons basketball coach (Chris Floyd)," said Wiegel, an Antioch High grad who played intramural hoops in college but was mostly involved with football. "I read a lot of books on basketball and how to run a camp. Plus, my two assistants (Rheberg and Dembinski) knew a lot too about how to run a camp. Those two are my ears and eyes."

Wiegel served as assistant coach before taking over the eighth and seventh-grade programs at Emmons.

Meanwhile, Rheberg teaches social studies at Emmons while also coaching the sixth-grade boys' team. Dembinski works for the Special Education District of Lake County (SEDOL) and is a teacher's aid at Emmons.

But the trio's focus the past two weeks has been simple: basketball.

The camp stressed the fundamentals, from passing to shooting to basic ball-handling and simulated games.

"We are trying to build from the bottom up, and the response has been tremendous," said Wiegel. "We had about 10-11 kids in each grade participate. Overall, it was about 75 percent of the regular basketball players. That's a pretty good number. They want to get better and that's exactly our goal—to help them. We try and practice a different skill every day."

According to the coach, if one goofs off or messes up, all of the campers suffer the consequences.

"They all run if there is a troublemaker in the group," the coach said. "It's been good for their conditioning, not to mention discipline. For the most part, it's been a great group to work with."

Antioch High School freshman-to-be Meryl Weber, who played hoops for three years at Emmons and now competes for the high school summer league at ACHS, was on hand to help out with some of the basic fundamentals.

"I'm surprised but very happy for the program because so many kids came out," said Weber, who scored 86 total points for the eighth-grade girl's team that finished 9-6 last winter.

"Helping them has also helped me work on my skills. I can correct myself as well as them. Continuity has been great, though. That's really important."

Wiegel said one of the main things he stressed in the camp was man-to-man defense.

"We're kind of a small team, so playing man-to-man and utilizing our quickness will definitely help especially against the bigger teams," he said. "A lot of the teams (in grade school) don't play it (man-to-man). They mostly play zone. We've also practiced trapping quite a bit."

Eleven-year-old Kevin Smiley, who will be entering sixth grade, is looking forward to playing man-to-man defense.

"I wanted to learn more about it (man-toman defense) at this camp," said Smiley, in his first year of playing organized basketball. "The scrimmages are also a lot of fun."

Twelve-year-old Travis Kwielford thinks the camp will help out when it comes to the experience factor.

"When we get into playing during the season, I think more of the guys will know what to do because we're practicing all of it now," said Kwielford, who will play on the seventh-grade squad.

Lots of fun, lots of home runs

By STEVE PETERSON Staff Reporter

There was some drama as Jon Cejka waited in the dugout of the Gurnee Boys Baseball Complex.

Dave Cendella of Antioch was making a charge at Cejka's seven home runs hit in the finals of the 14-year-old division in the Century 21 United Home Run Derby. Alas, Cejkas seven round trippers held up and he won the final trophy of the day Sunday.

"My strategy was the same for all the rounds. I wanted to just swing at a waste-

"He is peaking at the right time. The tournament came at a good time for him," said his coach, Bob McFarland.

Alex Lindberg also qualified for the finals in the oldest age group and he had four dingers in the finals.

Competitors at the event were from Gagewood, Gurnee, Antioch and Lakes Region baseball programs.

Sean Kennedy, a freshman at Warren High, impressed those gathered in the shade at the baseball field with a round with 13 dingers in the 12-year-old bracket.

Evan Bierman of Wauconda won the 13year-old age group with five homers in the finals. "I just wanted to sit back and wait for my pitch," Bierman said. Tim Matheson of Gurnee and Aaron Dahlke also made the finals of the 13s, John Picone, with seven dingers in the finals, won the 11-year-old age bracket.

The Gurnee slugfest is patterned after the Major League Baseball Home Run Derby at the All-Star Game. Sammy Sosa, Ken Griffey Jr. and Jason Giambi are the pro sluggers who have won the event so far. The "real" home run derby will be July 14 at U.S. Cellular Field in Chicago.

BUILD

Thirteen-year-old Chris Schwall is one of the so-called veterans at Emmons, having played organized ball for four years now. He will be one of the key guys on the eighth-grade team come this winter.

"I really like the scrimmages because we get to play games while the instructors/coaches tell us what we're doing wrong," said Schwall, who mostly played shooting guard last year but Wiegel has pretty much given him the green light to play point-guard this winter.

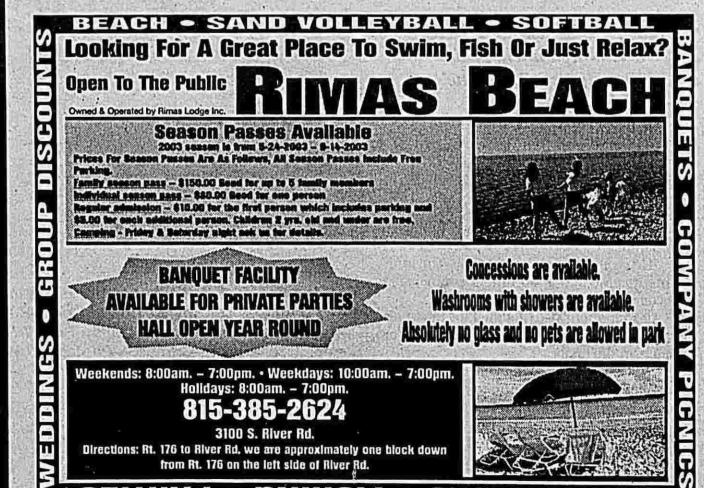

'The camp has been great because it means more practice, and you have to do that to get more familiar with the game and with what the coaches are trying to do."

Eleven-year-old Ryan Zawacki is also in his first year of playing organized basketball.

"I wanted to improve my shooting and passing. But my favorite part of the camp is scrimmaging," said Zawacki, an incoming sixth-grader.

Wiegel said that he will hold a girls' sixth, seventh, and eighth-grade two-week long camp starting the week of July 7.

Kristan, Devall, Hensley score wins in summer opener; 'King' next Beach Park's Brian Kristan scored a thrilling victory in the winged outlaw sprint car feature kicking off the "official" beginning of the summer season at Local Motion Entertainment's Wilmot Speedway one-third mile clay oval track over the weekend. Waukegan's Ed Devall was also victorious in winning a caution-plagued IMCA modified feature. And 16-year-old Wilmot High School student Todd Hensley of Twin Lakes won his first ever hobby stock main event.

"That was a lot of fun," said Kristan, a second generation winged warrior who has been campaigning regularly this season with the traveling Interstate Racing Association (IRA) series which is coming to Wilmot on Sat., June 28.

"I like running with the Schlafers," Kristan said referring to the father and son team, Al and Danny, who finished second and third behind Kristan. "They run hard, but they run clean.

"I didn't know if we'd make it to the finish," said Kristan, whose Dad, Joe, a Wilmot track champion, retired from regular racing a couple years ago. "I had all kinds of oil leaking into the floor by my seat and the engine was running rough. We've had a lot of motor problems this year, but hopefully we can get it figured out."

"A win in an IRA show at Wilmot, my home track where I started out, would be awesome," Kristan added, drawing the approval cheers of the crowd.

Danny Schlafer took the initial lead in the sprint main, battling his Dad, Al, in the early going. Kristan went wing to wing with the elder Schlafer for runner-up spot until just prior to the halfway point.

Kristan took command of second, setting his sights on the younger Schlafer. The two went side by side for a couple laps before Kristan dove deep into turn one as Danny Schlafer drifted wide. Kristan went on to the win. Danny Schlafer held off the late challenges of his Dad, Al, for second. John Tierney was fourth while Bill Wirth came across in fifth place.

"This was hard, but it was fun," said Devall, who was congratulated in victory lane by Tom Herbert, national representative for IMCA. "I wasn't sure if it was ever going to end. The track was really fast and the competition in this class is really tough. We've been struggling a little, so this win makes it all worth it. I really appreciate the fans that come here each and every week to support us, the staff and the promoters who give us a place to race."

Bobby John Hensley lead the first three laps before N. Simons overtook the point using the outside back in turn one following a caution. Hensley eventually dropped out of contention with a flat tire, but recovered to place eighth.

Devall overtook leader Nick Simons on a restart following a red flag three laps from the scheduled finish after the two battled side by side for an entire circuit of the one-third mile clay oval.

The red came out when Dave Holden's car jumped over the right-front wheel of Kris Techert's, sending Holden into a snap barrel roll on the backstretch. After Holden landed, Robert Hoffstadt slammed into the disabled car that was sideways across the back straight-away. None of the drivers were seriously injured, but Techert was the only one able to continue.

N. Simons, while trying to retake the lead from Devall, struck an infield tire and spun in turn one on what would have been the white flag lap. With the field scrambling, the yellow/checkered appeared with Devall officially leading just one lap—the final one.

Antioch's Scott Kuxhouse came from ninth to finish second. Larry Surleta, who brought out a yellow on lap 10, worked through the field in the last nine laps to finish third after restarting at the back of the field. Mike Sullivan, who earlier had problems as well and had to restart at the back, finished fourth. John Dost rounded out the top-5.

"This is fantastic. I can't believe it," said Hensley, who is in his first season of racing: "I have to thank my uncles, Bobby John (who races IMCA modifieds) and Raymond (who races sprints). They have helped me a lot, as has my family. I just kept driving the car not knowing what was going on behind me, hoping I'd see the checkered flag and finally I did."

Hensley was in front the entire race, however, cautions twice kept closing the field up behind the youngster. A tight four-way battle, which at times got four wide, for second allowed Hensley to pull away. Todd Roe edged out Gary Foster for second and William Grolean was fourth as those three crossed side by side. Jason Jarvis was awarded fifth after

Jim Scanlon was penalized for unsportsmanlike behavior in the pits after the race.

Wilmot Speedway will host its biggest night of the season on Sat., June 28. The Bumper-To-Bumper IRA Outlaw Sprint Car Series will invade the one-third mile clay oval for their only 2003 appearance. The occasion will feature the King of Wisconsin/Wayne Daun Memorial as the top winged outlaw sprint car warrior for the state is crowned.

IMCA modifieds are on the program as well. "Flying Ed" and his extreme motorcycle stunts is also scheduled to make an appearance.

Fans who purchase grandstand admission for the show will receive the bonus of 2-for-1 admission for the Wilmot Speedway Independence Holiday Weekend program of sprints, IMCA modifieds and hobby stocks. That program is scheduled for Sat., July 5. In addition, co-promoters Gary Brown and Mike Simons announced a bike will be given away to a lucky youngster in attendance July 5. The new bike is courtesy of Local Motion Entertainment's Wilmot Speedway and Antioch Schwinn.

This is the 52nd consecutive year the facility, located on the Kenosha County Fairgrounds, has operated. It is the first under new promoters Local Motion Entertainment, Inc. Grandstands open at 5 p.m. each race night with the first race scheduled for 7 p.m. For latest information contact the 24-hour race line at 262-862-2446 or the web site at www.wilmotspeedway.com.—Michael Babicz

Glass art shop lights up Millburn

By CHRISTY BLANDFORD Lakeland Correspondent

Fifteen years ago, Bill Musak began creating stained glass art as a hobby, but now, it's grown into his life's work.

Musak and his wife, Linda, are using their stained glass talent to inspire other artists through teaching them, and selling their artistic talent to those who are not as artistically-inclined at their new shop, The Glass Palette.

The business, located at 3850 North Highway 45 in Millburn, opened in April, but the Musaks celebrated their new business with a grand opening that attracted more than 100 people last weekend.

Linda said when Bill was laid off a year ago because his job was eliminated, they decided to turn their passion into a full-time job. When the Musaks found a location in Millburn for the shop, Linda said they decided not to look back.

"We thought this is a find, this is a gift, let's go," she said.

Stained glass lamps and 3-D pieces are available for purchase at the shop. Items ranging from candleholders made of clear stained glass, and personalized windows engraved with baby or bridal party names to a 3-D replica of the Lake Villa train station are available for purchase at the shop.

Bill said most of the art sold at the shop was either created by himself or Linda.

"We're trying to keep it pretty unique in that what goes in there is hopefully original art," he said. "I took a class 15 years ago and it turned out to be more than a hobby."

Bill said the items can get pricey because it takes awhile to complete the intricate projects, but classes are available to teach those who might not otherwise be able to afford stained glass pieces how to make items.

"The thing about stained glass is it's very labor-intensive, so it can get very pricey," he said. "(We) teach classes so (people) can get inspired to so something inexpensively. It makes sense to take a class if you're so inclined."

The Glass Palette is not only a shop. The Musaks offer classes at a stained glass studio behind the shop from beginner levels to advanced. Both basic skills classes last for six weeks, for two-and-a-half hours a day, and advanced classes, which teach potential artists how to create 3-D stained glass designs, cost $50. All tools are supplied for each class.

The Glass Palette is located in a building that was formerly an art gallery, right on a creek side near a forest preserve, which makes for a beautiful setting, Bill said.

"It's the perfect place for a creative endeavor," he said.

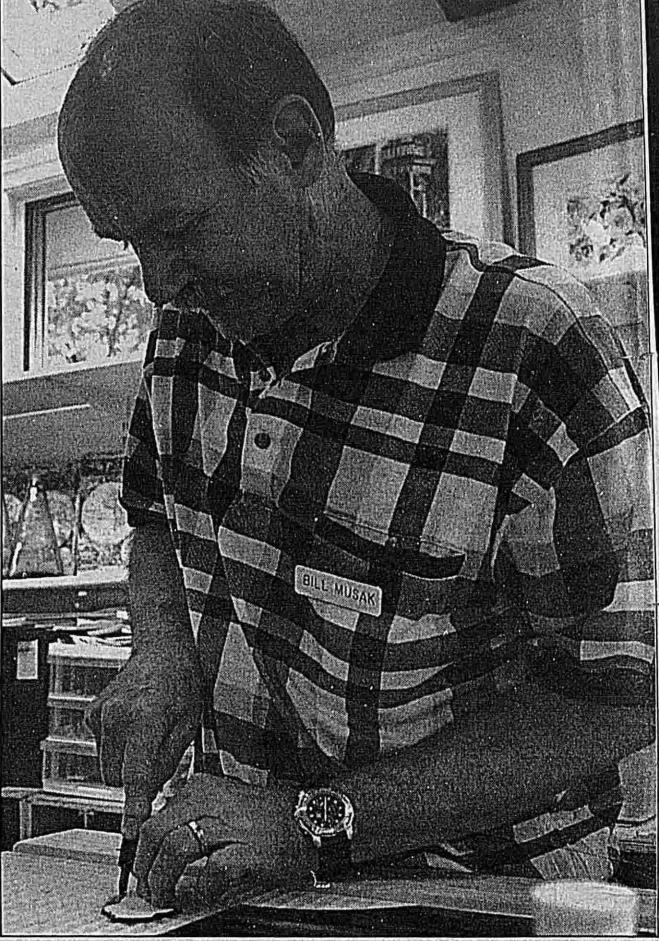

Linda said she hopes to inspire other artists.

"I've been luck to find a passion in my life," Linda said. "My husband is one and stained glass is another. We hope to pass that passion on with our students and get them inspired."

Linda said working with her husband hasn't been difficult since they each take a different business approach.

'We have two very different approaches; he's a big picture more creative person and I'm the detailed businessperson," she said. "We make a great team and we don't tell the other one what to do. Neither one of us is the boss."

The Glass Palette is opened Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon and closed on Sundays and Mondays. For information on stained art classes, call 847-356-5719, or visit their Web site, www.the-glass-palette.com.

June 27-July 3, 2003

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

veryone dreams of flying. In my dreams, flight is effortless. I drift above treetops and houses as easily as floating in a clear, still pool of water.

Airplanes are not like that. There is the noise of the engines, the vibration, and the discomfort of turbulence.

Helicopters are not like that. There is the cacophony of the rotors, and often abrupt turns, drops and lifts.

Gliders are not like that. Although there is no engine noise, there is still the sound of wind rushing over wings.

There is only one experience that comes close to the smooth silent flight of my dreams, and that is hot-air ballooning.

My maiden ascent happened with only a twohour notice. I had been waiting to fly for about a month, but balloon pilot John Trione, owner of the Lake Geneva Balloon Company, would not take a chance on anything less than optimum flying conditions

Even on days that look sunny, disturbances in the air can make ballooning treacherous. So, I waited. When the call came at 4:30 in the afternoon ("We are flying tonighti"), I drove up to Lake Geneva and met Frione the parking lot of a shopping center. From there, he took me to the athletic field of Wheatland Center School, just a few miles away.

Before even unpacking the balloon, Trione sent up a small black helium-filled balloon called a "pl-ball" to determine wind speed and direction. A pi-ball sent up earlier had decided which of 12 launch sites we would use. I watched as ng of Trione and his crew unfurled the rainbow-striped balloon, extended it to its full 70 feet (from basket bottom to balloon top) and blew cold air into it with a mammoth fan.

It took a half hour, and I could barely contain myself.

"One of the things ballooning teaches you is patience," Trione reminded me. When the balloon was upright, Trione started the propane jets, blowing a 10-20 foot flame into the air. As the 105,000 cubic feet of air heated up, it took all the strength of three crew members to hold the basket down.

I climbed in, and, at last, we were aloft, in the aptly-named "Easy Wind." We rose to about 800 feet, reducing the houses, cars, people and livestock below to tiny toys on a broad green blanket.

Except for the occasional "whoosh" when Trione shot another flame into the air, there was unbroken silence. We were traveling with the wind, rather than resisting it. It gave me my second life lesson from ballooning the Zen-like realization that when you go with the flow, there is less noise, more peace.

There was no sensation of movement. The ground eemed to be scrolling underneath us.

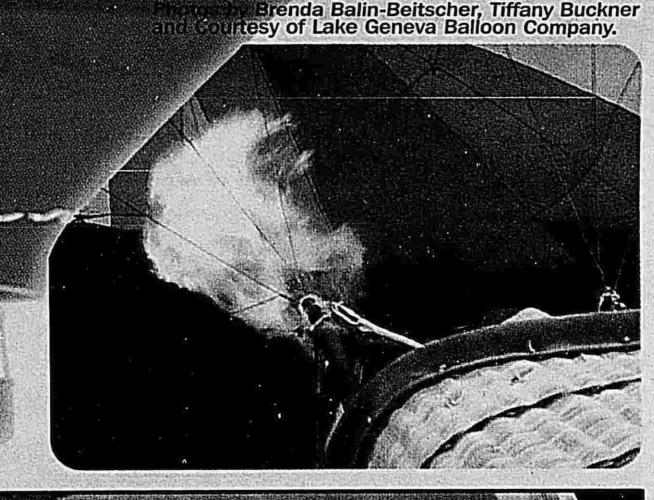

As we drifted over farms and houses, Trione kept us on course with the use of a hand-held GPS. All the while, we were in constant contact with the Easy Wind Balloon Team, who followed along in a van. Several times, along the way, other trucks and cars would follow, too. Some pulled over to the side of the road to take pictures, while up in the air, I tried, in vain, to take enough photos to capture each incredible moment

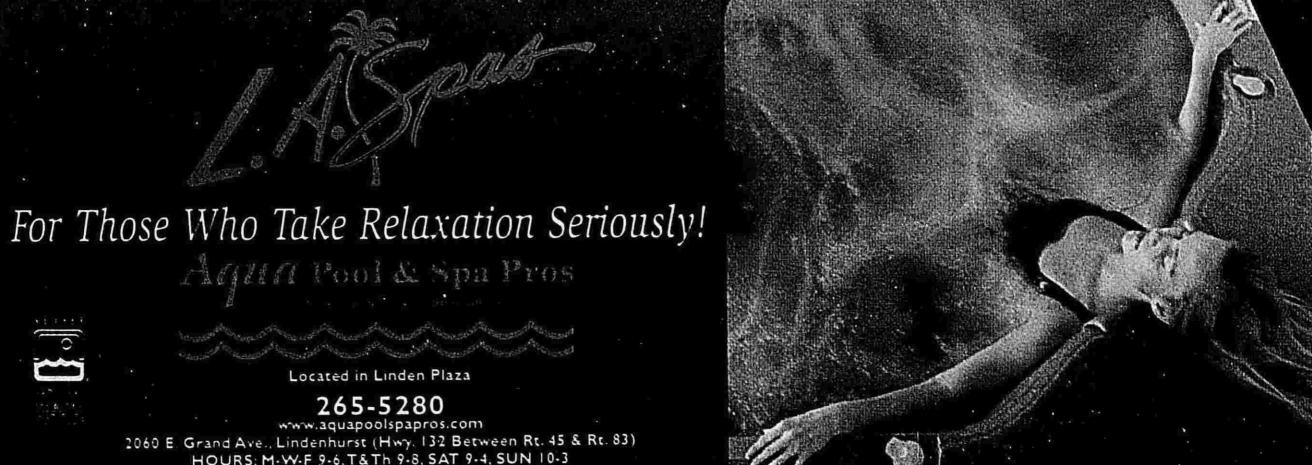

Meanwhile, Trione and 10-year-old David Hughes, our in-air crew member, watched the terrain. David suggested we "tree-top," skimming just inches over the tops of the mature trees along our route. During the course of our flight, we rose and descended several times. The variation in height was interesting for me, as the landscape below zoomed in, allowing us to converse with groundlings, and zoomed out, giving us an we-inspiring panoramic view of lakes, woods and fields. But Trions was not changing our altitude (varying from as low as 200 feet to as high as 800 feet) just to give me good explained how one navigates a completely round object that has no propellers, rudders or wings. I steer by following the changing winds at different altitudes," he said.

'Pants on Fire' skirts the truth but keeps the laughs coming atirical skits have had a hard time of it recently. Striking targets has proven as tricky as finding methods of mass destruction – or a missing Saddam Hussein.

But "Pants on Fire," the new revue at Second City e.t.c., the smaller studio-like sister theater to Second City, hits the bull's-eye dead center. This show is a winner.

It's uproarious from the very first sketch, one about a departing White House press secretary holding his final press conference. With nothing to lose, he tells reporters he will be "entirely truthful" in answering whatever questions they pose. When someone queries "Why Iraq?" he immediately exclaims, "We're taking over the world."

And so it goes. Other skits in this fast-paced show directed by Joshua Funk

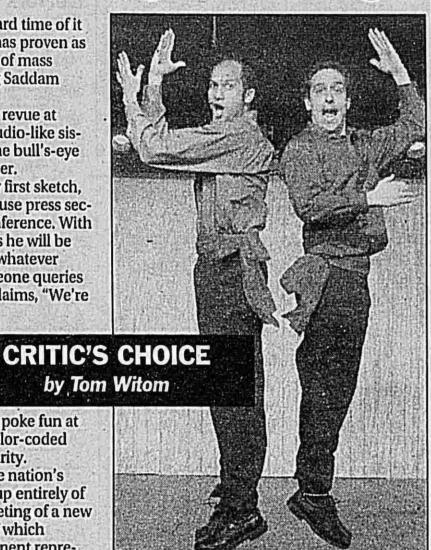

(who also directed the successful "Holy War, Batman") poke fun at the "terrorism rainbow" - the color-coded alerts reflecting heightened security.

Soon the audience meets the nation's only sleeper terrorist cell made up entirely of stoners. And there's the first meeting of a new group, Dictators Anonymous, of which Chicago lays claim to two prominent representatives.

In due course, Indiana is invaded, and paranoia is stirred when a Middle Eastern stranger joins an uptight church worship service. Another sketch, lambasting corporate advertising endorsements, has competing Exxon and Chevron phone teams squared off in Iraqi oil fields.

One of the most biting bits takes place during a program at the John Ashcroft Junior High, where students' comments are viciously misconstrued by sanctimonious board members and education superintendents.

The show's improv segment takes a wacky turn when an unsuspecting audience member finds himself nominated for the 2004 national election - and the energetic cast plays up the endorsement in an amusing rap number.

The late Miegs Field and public TV's never-ending fundraising also take it on the chin in this 25th revue that features an outstanding, rock solid six-member cast: Samantha Albert, Andy Cobb, Keegan-Michael Key, Nyima Funk, Jean Villepique and Peter Grosz. Trey Stone provides musical direction.

"Pants on Fire" is settling in for an open run, with performances Thursday through Sunday. Ticket information is available at 312-337-3992..

Proceeds will be applied toward a $1,000 scholarship for a CLC student pursuing a career in print or broadcast communications. The banquet is open to the general public. For tickets, call the CLC Foundation office at 847-543-2488.

Such environmental topics as the secrets of the Amazon, the quality of life in Lake County and good environmental practices will be the focus of Mother Earth, a weeklong learning experience to be offered July 14-17 as part of Quest, the College of Lake County's program for adults 50 and older. Formerly called Elder College, the Quest program will be offered at CLC's Southlake Educational Center in Vernon Hills.

The Mother Earth session will present indepth discussions on a variety of topics, including Secrets of the Rain Forest, Climates of the Future, Why Energy Costs So Much, Lake County's Future and Decisions That Affect the Environment. A tour of two Lake County environmental sites also will be included.

The cost is $189, which includes lunch. For registration and information, call the Southlake Educational Center at 847-543-6503.

See just how much a mastodon weighs compared to cows or cars ooking for some "Icy" Summer family fun? Check out the hands-on Ice Age adventure at the Lake County Discovery Museum featured in the exciting exhibition Mighty Mastodons of the Ice Age. Originally developed by Sci-Tech Hands-on Museum in Aurora, this entertaining exhibit has been expanded to include interactive ice Age features.

Mighty Mastodons will be featured in the Special Exhibitions Gallery through July 31 when it will become extinct.

Through sight, sound, and touch visitors are transported back to Ice Age Lake County fun exhibition for the whole family. Check out real mastodon bones, including a full skull, tusks, femur, ribs, jaw with teeth and more. Exhibits provide guests with an opportunity to see what it might be like to pick up objects with a trunk, or be a paleontologist and dig for mastodon bones. See how you'd look with tusks, and determine how many cars or cows it takes to equal the weight of a mastodon. Climb into a cave and try your hand at cave drawing while hiding from some of those other ice age animals stalking the exhibit; a giant beaver, ground sloth, dire wolf and saber cat. See an Allosaurus dinosaur skull and Mammoth bones to learn about the differences between these animals and Mastodons. Mighty Mastodons of the Ice Age offers lots to see, do and learn for everyone.

Visitors to Lake County Discovery Museum can also enjoy the award winning Museum's interactive permanent exhibits including the Lake County Mall of History, the Vortex Roller Coaster Theater, and Bringing the World Home, showcasing the world's largest collection of picture postcards. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5.50 for adults, $2.50 youth ages 4-17, and ages 3 and under are free. Special discounts are offered every Tuesday and parking is always free. Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle

Rating

Rated PG-13 for action violence, sensuality and language/ innuendo

> Director Jon Amiel

Starring

Cameron Diaz, Drew Barrymore Lucy Liu, Demi Moore Bernie Mac

he Angels, Natalie, Dylan and Alex (Cameron Diaz, Drew Barrymore, & Lucy Liu), fight crime and those perpetrators that fall into their personal "axis of evil." Assignments are handed down from their boss Charles Townsend (John Forsythe) through an intermediary, Bosley (Bernie Mac). Demi Moore (looking very buff) is a retired Angel gone bad, who makes more than a cameo appearance.

Two silver rings have been stolen that when combined have codes that will reveal the names of people in the Witness Protection Program. The Angels think the job is over when the rings are recovered only to learn that Dylan is in the program and her former boyfriend Seamus (Justin Theroux) is seeking revenge for the 2,920 days he spent in jail because she was a witness for a murder he committed.

Delightfully clueless supporting performances are turned in by John Cleese, Luke Wilson, Matt LeBlanc, and Crispin Glover. They provide a respite from the death defying falls from high places by the Angels, and the martial arts skills that would have Neo ("The Matrix: Reloaded") turn and run. The film never takes itself too seriously, as it maintains a certain ditzy attitude.

If you liked the first "Angel's" movie three years ago, you won't be disappointed with this one. There's more action, more sexual double speak, and more sensuality. It goes for the action that will put it in the league of "The Matrix: Reloaded."

George's notion of the original film is "a trashy adult cartoon with real people," and not a lot has changed. Cameron Diaz is easy to look at; Bernie Mac can snap out those funny quips; Drew Barrymore uses her considerable talents at being silly; and Lucy Liu is in a race neutral role. Bosley describes the three of them falling from a building as, "it's raining white women." Who can argue about a film that has both Bruce Willis and Demi Moore, where she uses her tough guy skills picked up in "GI Jane," he gets killed and she doesn't have to do it?

There's lots of female flesh to be seen for the 16-year-old males, at whom this movie is aimed. For girls, seeing women in take control situations where they have the brains and the brawn to overcome the baddest macho men who cross their paths, gets an A+ for selfesteem. Then they are in T&A and ditz mode and the positives are a

If you are like George and want to relax by checking your brain at the door, get your popcorn, see plenty of action and still laugh, minus the cheese factors of this film, be sure to see "The Italian Job," "Hollywood Homicide" or even "Bruce Almighty."

lthough George has enjoyed recent romantic comedies such as "Two Weeks Notice" and "What a Girl Wants," each of these films is targeted at teens or young adults. It could make one wonder if your sex life ends at 35! Felix (Jean Reno of "Crimson Rivers") and Rose (Juliette Binoche of "Chocolat") provide some hope to the not quite geriatric set (you know, 40ish) in this delightful love story.

Felix and Rose meet at the airport in Paris, when an air controller strike results in Felix being deplaned and Rose loses her cell phone when it's accidentally flushed down a toilet. She asks to borrow his phone. Felix is a former gourmet chef who is now a senior executive of a frozen food company. Rose is a beautician and masseuse on her way to Acapulco to work at an upscale hotel. She's broke and he has plenty of cash. Her flight is from a discount ticket broker and he's in first class.

Rose has been in a twelve year relationship with Sergio (Sergi Lopez of "With a Friend Like orgasms for longer than she can remember. She has finally decided to leave Sergio and start life anew somewhere else. Although Felix is divorced, he is emotionally attached to his ex and will even go to a funeral for a person in her family that he cares nothing about. He has a way to go to make his letting go complete. The film does have an unbelievable number of coincidences that prevent Rose and Felix from going their separate ways. Forgivable, as they are stranded at an airport. The outcome is totally predictable, yet there is nothing silly about this comedy. And getting back to sex for those over 35, there are two brief scenes with nudity that are far sexier than most films that get into heavy breathing, which seems to last forever. The sexuality in this R rated film will be more acceptable to many than a lot of PG-13 movies marketed to tweens and teens. This romantic fantasy for adults has a happy ending without treating its intended audience like children.

AWAY

He explained that he might find a northerly wind, for example, at one altitude, and a westerly wind at another.

To change direction, he either rises, by heating up the air in the balloon, or descends, by letting out air through a valve at the top of the balloon.

In the quiet stretches between propane jet bursts, Trione told me how love begets love. In his case, it was the love of his life that led him to his passion for balloons.

In 1997, Trione was working for Wyeth Pharmaceuticals. He and his wife, Cheryl, had been married for 10 years, and he wanted to surprise her with something special, so he booked a balloon flight.

"You know how long you had to wait," he said. "I always tell people they can't be sure they will get a flight on the day they choose."

However, the fates were with the Triones, and they flew right on their anniversary, on June 27.

"I knew right away that this was what I wanted to do," he said.

It took him several years to begin to get the business off the ground, both figuratively and literally.

"My wife has been behind me every step of the way," he said. "I couldn't have done this without her."

Cheryl Trione is a science teacher at a high school in Johnsburg. This summer, she is giving up her summer vacation and working full-time at Baxter to help the family financially during Trione's first year as a full-time balloon operator. He began commercial flights last summer.

"She says she's not as passionate about it as I am, but she is working on getting her pilot's license," he said.

Trione, certified by the FAA, is presently the only pilot on his team, but friends Jan and Herb Coleman are also working towards certification.

"When I have more pilots, I can get more balloons, and have more time in the air," he said.

Nevertheless, he racks up about 100 hours a year in flight time, an unusually high number for the Midwest.

"We're right in the wind belt," he said. "Lake Michigan winds are sometimes a problem."

Trione has a second, smaller balloon, called "Diamonds in the Sky." While "Easy Wind" can hold 4-5 people, the fit is tighter in "Diamonds."

Trione and 13-year-old daughter Brittany have taken "Diamonds" out racing. Trione's 10-year-old son Jacob sometimes crews on flights. Trione's youngest child, Jenna, almost 5 years old, is eagerly awaiting her first balloon ride on her upcoming birthday.

Crew chief Tiffany Buckner is second only to Cheryl on Trione's list of those who make his dream possible. When Trione began crewing, five years ago, Buckner was with him. They have worked together ever since.

A professional photographer, Buckner not only supervises the ground crew and navigates for the chase car, she also records the exploits of the team, taking ground-based photos of flights.

Other crew members include Tim

Henry, Doug Hughes and his wife Ann, and their children, David and Amy.

Flights occur either two hours before sunrise, or two hours before sunset. It is a romantic notion, but more important, it is a schedule that is dictated by air currents. Trione flies seven days a week, all year, regardless of season—but always mindful of weather.

"It's actually warmer in the balloon than on the ground," he said. I could confirm that, as each time the pilot fired up the propane, heat surrounded us.

The "Basic Champagne Toast" flight package, which includes a one-hour flight (covering about five miles), a post-flight champagne toast and a keepsake flight certificate, costs $185 per person.

A Premium Private Flight-for-Two package costs $475 per couple, and includes a one-hour flight for the couple, post-flight hors d'oeuvres, postflight champagne toast and the keepsake certificate.

Gift certificates are available. They are good for two years.

Trione can be reached by telephone at 262-206-3975, or by e-mail, at jctrione@tds.net. Although the company has a web site, at www.lakegeneva.com, as of publication, it was still under construction.

Sunbird Balloonport, also operating out of Lake Geneva, offers unrestricted tickets (sunrise or sunset, seven days a week and holidays) for $200 per person. Restricted tickets (sunrise only, Monday-Thursday) are available for $175 per person. Groups of six or more can ride for $150 per person. Reservations can be made at 800-WE-DO-FLY.

There are a few balloon operators in Illinois. Most are located south and west of Lake County. There are none in Lake County.

As we approached our landing site, on a road in an estate subdivision not far from Wisconsin's "Air Estates" (a subdivision with its own landing strip) a plane taking off from the nearby air strip flew close overhead.

"We have the right of way," Trione assured me.

We touched down with a couple of bumps. The crew packed up the balloon, and in another half hour, we were back in the van, celebrating a perfect flight.

We did not drink champagne this time, but I recalled the words of Emily Dickinson: "Inebriate of Air am I..." and I knew it was all I needed. I had gotten high on getting high.

Don't pass up this summer camp s usual, I'm hopelessly behind planning my children's summer enrichment activities. The kids got out of school vesterday, and already they're making me pay for my procrastination. I have good reason to be worried.

Right now they're camouflaging their faces and stacking spears in a tree fort. Give them a day or two and they'll be ready to ambush. The hairs stand up on the back of my neck as I feel their eyes gauging the width of my rear "front".

So I've taken to the kitchen, my stronghold, to pore over brochures on summer camps that promise to address my child's every social, cognitive, and physical need while eradicating the ill effects of a year's worth of school lunches. Now wouldn't you agree that sacrificing a few months worth of groceries seems a small price to pay for emotional stability? (I mean mine.)

So much for wishful thinking. I call on the great thinkers for inspiration. For example, does a tree falling on deaf ears make a sound?

You bet it does-especially when I pound on the window as one almost lands on Dad while he's mowing the back forty! Now, my husband would never tempt the Fates by defiling good fortune with a chain saw, so I can count on those rotting limbs becoming lawn decorations.

But wait— a novel idea finally hits me. Who says kids can't pitch in and HELP over the summer?

Sure, I know it's a stretch nowadays. There is not one suburban kid in sight lugging garbage cans or mowing a lawn. But marketing is everything:

We offer an innovative program for talented kids who enjoy constant challenge. Our philosophy is exemplified by founder. Stewart Potter, an ingenious grandfather who turned his yard of rotten apples into a neighborhood game of "pitch the produce" to the delight of all.

We've expanded on Stewart's initial offering to include a full range of fun activities guaranteed to build your child's confidence.

Arts & Crafts: Campers try tree carving on a GRAND SCALE, then move on to monotone mural painting using an exciting new medium-aluminum siding! They learn the fine art of sculptural caulking in our storm window woodworking program, with a special celebration at the end.

Our Bubble Blast finale is the hit of the summer-especially when youngsters discover they've graduated from window washing to drywalls! And, as always, we relax with music. Kids, bring that saxophone or clarinet, and don't forget a hat for tips!

Sports: Our resident golf pro offers a unique take on swing development. He emphasizes gross motor development with weed clearing, while building player stamina via a structured regimen of compost caddying.

We've added a new fitness program this year for you cycling and baseball enthusiasts. Don't forget your bicycle helmets because you're going to put the pedal to the medal, and build those pitching arms to boot. By the time camp is over you'll be delivering those newspapers right across the home plate!

Academics: Of course, we realize the importance of ongoing education over the summer. We've repackaged it in a series of entertaining workshops. For instance, your child will have the opportunity to learn all about the magnetic properties of dust balls. He'll even understand the importance of getting under the beds after he's given his own microscope for a dust mite scavenger hunt!

Last but not least, we explore the Chemistry of Cooking in our cozy Chuck Wagon. Math skills also take on special importance as your child performs algebraic operations with his own hand peeled carrots and potatoes. (Note: Concession stand is available for parties and other events.)

Judge OKs testimony in murder case

Woodstock-Previous testimony of one of the defendants accused in the murder of Raul Briseno will be entered into court, said a McHenry County Circuit Court judge in the trial of Kenneth Smith, of Park City.

A defense attorney presented a letter from Justin Houghtoling saying that he did not "give truthful testimony in the testimony of Jennifer McMullan (who was already convicted on murder charges). He said that your client (Smith) was not the shooter. He would not identify the others who were with him, but wrote that an innocent man should not go to jail for something he did not Prosecutors said part of Houghtoling's plea agreement said Smith pulled the trigger on the gun that killed Briesno in 2001. Smith is accused of firing the five shots; one of which was the fatal shot that hit Briseno in the mouth.

Dress code issue is not dead yet

Round Lake Area School Community Unit District 116—the Parent Teacher Advisory Committee's proposal on regulated dress is still very much alive. The board directed the administration to establish a committee charged with bringing back more data on time spent on disciplinary issues; to explore and recommend how the district's current dress code policy could be streamlined further and how and when a new regulated dress code policy could and should be introduced throughout the district.

Liquor 'sting' nets 5 arrests for cops

Lake Villa-In a sweep of retail stores and bars, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst police, in conjunction with the Illinois State Police, cited five businesses in the two villages for violation of state statutes and local ordinances regulating sale of alcohol to minors.

In Lake Villa, servers at all four of the bars in the village were charged with illegal service of alcohol to a minor. Those charged were as follows: Kevin K. Meyer, 46, of Caboose Crossing, at 151 E. Grand Ave.; Julie M. Lech, 45, of Cedar Inn, at 142 Cedar Ave.; Jamie C. Jorgensen, 22, of Nutties, at 65 W. Grand Ave. and Janice L. Payne, 41, of Prime Time Eatery, at 10 W. Grand Ave.

In Lindenhurst, the only establishment that was out of compliance with the law was White Hen Pantry, at 2144 Sand Lake Road, where Theresa R. Olsen, 33, was charged.

Senior center gets helping hands

Libertyville—The village has come through for the Libertyville Senior Center, at the Civic Center building.

The downtown Civic Center will get a staffer to run the senior center part time, and with the Senior Council stepping up its own volunteer involvement. The village is pulling an employee from the Parks and Recreation Department's senior activities to work at the Senior Center.

Sheriff ups screening on inmate work detail

MINNING

By MARC JENKINS Managing Editor

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re said his department will restart its inmate work detail program for the year, the same program in which an inmate walked away from a roadside pickup crew 10 months ago.

Low-risk inmates from the Lake County Jail have been sent in crews of 8-10 about three times a week during warmer months since 1997, to pick litter from roadsides, clean area parks and forest preserve property and scrub graffiti.

"It's got a lot of positive comments from the community," Del Re said. "It gives an inmate who has a limited sentence a chance to do some good for the public. We're going to remain consistent doing all we can to make Lake County better place visually."

Schmidt eluded police for seven hours while wearing nothing but boxer shorts and tennis shoes for most of his time on the lam.

After acquiring a pair of pants along the way, Schmidt spent most of his time hiding out from police officers and canine units from the sheriff's department, Buffalo Grove, Hawthorn Woods and the Cook County Sheriff.

Kildeer Police discovered Schmidt in a backyard near Route 12 and Lake-Cook Road.

Police were confused as to why Schmidt, of Round Lake, who had less than a month left to serve of a sentence on a 1999 forgery charge for cashing bad checks, decided to

CLASSIFIED

Schmidt, who was on the work detail because he was not an escape risk, was set to be released three months early from his six-month sentence on Sept. 5.

Schmidt is now serving three years for felony escape at the Pontiac Correctional Center. His sentence began on Oct. 23, 2002, but he is scheduled for parole on July 28.

A better screening process will virtually eliminate any further escape attempts, Del Re said.

"You won't ever see sex offenders or drug dealers out there on the work details."

> Gary Del Re Lake County Sheriff

"The only people permitted (on the details) are volunteers who are low-risk inmates like DUI offenders and minor drug offenders who haven't committed violent crimes,' Del Re said. "You won't ever see sex offenders or drug dealers out there on the work details."

If staffing and weather permits, Del Re hopes to see three crews go out each week. Last year, 8,800 tons of garbage were picked from 67 miles of county roads.

Besides a cleaner county, the jail staffers see an even greater reward, according to Chuck DeFilippo, director of corrections for the sheriff.

"Another benefit realized with this program are the opportunities which it gives correctional officers to leave the (jail) during the work day. This seems to have a positive impact on employee morale in the Lake County Jail."

Restauranteurs' family loses son in motorcycle accident

By JOHN PHELPS and ELIZABETH GUARD Staff Reporters

Marshall Micheal Khayat, 15, died Saturday, June 21, after a motorcycle accident in Walworth County, Wis., while visiting friends in the Whitewater, Wis., area.

He was the son of Chris and Twyla Khayat, who own the Khayat Restaurant group, which runs five eateries and bars in Lake County including In-Laws Restaurant, Rockland Café, Fatman Inn, Half Day Inn and Libertyville Bowl.

Whitewater Police officers responded to the 1100 block of West Blackhawk Drive at 11:18 p.m. to investigate a traffic accident involving a motorcyclist who was unresponsive. Upon arrival, officers and EMTs performed CPR on Khayat, who sustained a head injury during the accident. Assistant Walworth County Coroner Thomas F. Miller pronounced Khayat dead at the scene.

Witnesses advised that no other vehicles were involved in the accident, but the matter is still under investigation.

Democrat women launch new grassroots group

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

"Today, we are making history." This refrain was heard over and over again as speakers addressed about 230 women gathered at the Crowne Plaza in Mundelein to launch Lake County Democratic Women.

"I can't believe what I'm seeing," said State Sen. Susan Garrett (D-Lake Forest). "At first, I hoped for 50-75 people to show up. It's like we all came out of the closet."

Lake County Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer hosted the June 22 luncheon.

Vanderventer, the only Democrat to hold countywide office in Lake County, is acting president of the steering committee for the fledgling organization.

She is one of the authors of a mission statement that says, "We are a grassroots organization devoted to recruiting, educating, leading, mentoring and supporting women who aspire to seek an elected or appointed office. Later the same day, Hynes formally announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate.

Hynes cautioned the women that the politics of the 2004 elections would "put Roe v. Wade on the ballot."

Guest speaker U.S. Rep. Jan Schakowsky (D-9th C.D., III.) described how, in 1969, she became involved in politics as a young mother of two living in Mt. Prospect.

Scout camp reaches out to underprivileged children

But some children were reluctant to participate at first. Some children got off the bus yelling obscenities and flashing gang signs,

but after learning some

"plain, innocent games,"

they had all calmed down.

By CHRISTY BLANDFORD Lakeland Correspondent

auricio Diaz had never known the joys of fishing and hiking at a camp, but after the seven-year-old's first day at the Boy Scout's Scoutreach camp, he added fishing to his list of favorite activities.

Diaz was just one of more than 300 children in first through eighth grades who traveled from towns throughout the county to attend the day's events at Wadsworth's Camp Oakarro.

Scoutreach is partially a recruiting event for local Boy Scout troops, but also an opportunity for children who do not usually have the chance to spend a day at camp.

Chuck Frieman, Boy Scouts field director, said the event is targeted to reach underprivileged children, who were recruited through schools, English as a second language programs, local community centers and housing authorities.

Scoutreach camps began in 1989, Frieman said, as an effort by the Round Lake school district and the now dissolved Migrant Council to help Hispanic children branch out of the community and spend a day at camp.

The effort is still running, but children from communities other than just Round Lake were invited to attend. Youths from Highwood, North Chicago, Waukegan, Mundelein and Evanston were also bussed to spend the day at camp.

"It's a chance for them to get together with other kids from other communities, boys and girls, and gives them a chance to do something a little bit different this summer as opposed to sitting in daycare or at home," Frieman said.

As the sunshine streamed through the trees blanketing the 40-acre camp, the children spent the day with Boy Scout leaders playing games and sports, making crafts, navigating nature trails and fishing.

Waukegan resident Patricia Diaz brought her son Mauricio after he heard about the camp through school.

"He's had a lot of fun," Patricia said. "It's a good experience for him. He's had a lot of fun with the other kids."

Lindenhurst resident Elizabeth Guadarrama brought her son Alex, 10, and daughter Sandra, 12, to the camp after learning about it from a Mundelein community center. Sandra said she enjoyed the morning's activities, but was looking forward to an event scheduled for later in the day.

"It was a lot of fun," Sandra said. "I haven't been fishing yet, but I think fishing's going to be fun."

Taylor Kaar, 16, has served as a scout leader at the camp for two years. Working with children at the soccer station, Kaar, a Grayslake resident, said the children were well-behaved.

"It's a really great atmosphere," he said."

"These kids are pretty good at heart and when you have some rules, they are really great kids."

But some children were reluctant to participate at first. Heather Daniels, programming director said some children got off the bus yelling obscenities and flashing gang signs, but after learning some "plain, innocent games," they had all calmed down.

"They can talk about these new games with students at school and instead of rough-housing on the playground, they can play these," she said. "They have a common bond here, and that's camp. All walks of life are here."

All children can potentially become a Boy Scout, Daniels said. Even if there are no Boy Scout programs nearby, any child can begin a troop as long as they have a leader and a church, school or community organization to sponsor the troop, she said.

The event also kicked off the Cub Scouts' five-week summer camp program, open to all local Cub Scouts. Around 850 kids are expected to attend at least one week of the camp, Daniels said.

Tackling highway hornet's nests hen it comes to long range highway planning, officialdom regularly looks at the future with a north-south frame of mind. East-west highway needs, as we have pointed out from time to time in the past, tend to be back-burnered or viewed as purely local matters.

This geographic myopia is being evidenced once again as the future of Route 173, the northern most major east-west thoroughfare in Lake County is being studied. Members of the Antioch Planning and Zoning Board will gather public input on the future of Route 173 as a "transportation corridor" at a meeting July 10. Consultants and staff aides will discuss plans for development along the two-lane highway in the vicinity of the Tri-State Tollway. Antioch leaders see the sector in terms of commercial and industrial growth in the nature of office, research and retail that would butress big box stores to be built closer to existing Antioch.

All well and good. Antioch leaders may be on to something in inviting public discourse early on. If offials are sincere, problems associated with other east-west arterials might be headed off. This locality is replete with growth and development overwhelming a highway system geared for mid-century needs—the last century. Typically, the corridor concept has been overlooked for the sake of satisfying selfish needs. Good examples of this approach are Lincolnshire's narrow focus on Route 22, Route 176 being dominated by local needs enunciated by Libertyville and Mundelein, Grayslake vascilating on Route 120, and Gurnee viewing Grand Ave. (Route 132) basically as its Main Street. A corridor concept applied to these east-west arterials might have headed off some of the existing paralysis now being experienced.

As we see it, the corridor approach to highway planning sensibly takes into consideration the beginning, the middle and end of a roadway. The hornet's nest the public suffers results when only part of the highway corridor is considered.

Summer's here!

h, now comes the time of year that makes Lakeland living worthwhile.

Even as the long July 4 holiday weekend signals mid-point of the summer vacation season, we know that OUR summer is only beginning. We can look forward to eight to 10 weeks of uninterrupted warm days (sometimes down right hot) and balmy, star-lit evenings.

Cramming all sorts of activities into the abbreviated summer is our way of life. It's pool time. Sun bathing. Shady naps. Walks in the sun. Just about every Lakeland community sponsors an outdoor festival with lots of finger food and family fun. The Chain O' Lakes is churning with boaters. Forest Preserves are crowded with picnickers.

The Lake County Fair will be on July 22-27 for a historic 75th anniversary—150 years if predecessor expositions are counted. Lake Countians know a good thing!

Backyard barbecues and neighborhood block parties will be the order of the day. A word of caution, though. Make sure the skeeters are kept at bay while the West Nile virus still is a factor. Take comfort that official-dom is united in attacking the mosquito menace. Your tax dollars at work to insure outdoor comfort after dark.

Back to July 4 for a moment. Independence Day is the most American of holidays. Let's put partisanship aside to recognize our forefathers and reflect on the benefits of freedom. We kind of like the spirit embodied in a bumper sticker slogan: Stand Tall for America. The U.S.A. is a special place. Let 's not forget.

Work release to grow t's going to take 24 months, but a badly over-burdened prisoner work release program is being expanded and upgraded. When completed, there will be space for 240 inmates, up from the current capacity of 110 that has been static for some time due to lack of capacity. The Lake County Jail has been dealing with a work-release waiting list of about 100 for a number of months.

Work release, where prisoners hold day jobs but spend nights in jail, has been an unqualified success over the years. Work release prisoners come from all walks of life and all parts of the county. The program has faced a chronic shortage of beds that was solved when members of the Lake County Board voted to spend $12.5 million to build a seven story addition to the county jail in Waukegan.

A side benefit of expanding work release beds will be increasing capacity for the general jail population which is predicted to nearly about in about 15 years. There will be a need for about 1,100 beds at that time.

The decision to expand work release at the jail site came as the result of the City of Waukegan standing firm against plans of the county to convert an abandoned supermarket that could have been accomplished for an estimated $7 million. County Administrator Barry Burton put the best face on the more expensive solution by saying on-site expansion will serve better in the long run.

Work release is a "safety valve" solution to the growing inmate population because it is a beneficial alternative for dealing with non-violent offenders. Work release has operated along model lines and now it will be improved even more.

Kirk way ahead of potential foes ongressman Mark Kirk, preparing a re-election campaign for a third term, has spelled out a personal agenda that could be the rally cry for Republican efforts in 2004.

Representing the 10th District covering eastern Lake County and the northeastern most portion of Cook County, Kirk said that he will be out to advance the war on terror, restart the economy and modernize the Medicare system. Sounds like a telling game plan for the nation.

Kirk serves on the House Appropriations Committee where the decisions on federal spending are made. He also has become a respected spokesman on military preparedness where his experience as a Navy aviator is a distinct advantage.

The energetic young Republican currently is conducting a poll on cutting-edge issues. Questions include opinions on dealing with Iran, a proposed 10-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax, medical malpractice, tax on dividends, school testing and stem cell research. Kirk is out to obtain a good "feel" of attitudes in the 10th, Letters he is sending to constitutients and supporters underscores the importance of an early start in a re-election campaign. Kirk's aggressiveness is an example of why it is so difficult to dislodge an incumbent. The North Shore Republican is way ahead of potential opponents, both in his own party and Democratic challengers.

Exactly how far will be determined June 30, the deadline for filing campaign disclosure forms.

Cooking with Charlie

Ralph DePasquale is getting ready for his "day in the sun" as a Charlie Trotter's Celebrity Chef. The Ingleside resident won the honor of getting behind-the-scenes culinary experience at one of Chicago's most famous restaurants at a charity auction. DePasquale said he's scheduled to report for "work" at 2 p.m. and lend a hand through the dinner hour.

Teachers pets

Children from the Barrington elementary class of Laura Luczak formed a cheering section on shore when their teacher exchanged wedding vows with Owen E. Gilleland on the charter yacht Valara VI. The luxury vessel anchored in front of Buckingham Fountain, Chicago, for the twi-light ceremony. Laura and Owen waved their appreciation to the youngsters and other interested onlookers from a trellis located on the flying bridge. The setting was like reality TV. After a honeymoon in Hawaii, the newlyweds will be at home in Valley Lakes, Round Lake, Gilleland is a Chicago construction executive.

Telemarketing for charities—Who gets how much he greatest percentage of telephone calls making a pitch for something or other are made by telemarketers. They never let up. What is most bothersome to me are the ones which make a very high sales pitch for veterans' and law enforcement groups and you wonder whether the fund raisers making the sales pitch are legitimate or not. They play to people's ordinary inclinations to want to help such charities, but you worry that such high-pressure sales jobs make you wonder, "who is benefiting the most, the charities or the marketers."

It was a "partial victory," then, when the U.S. Supreme Court, in an Illinois case, decided that when a telemarketer calls to solicit funds in behalf of a charity, you have the right to ask what part of every dollar goes to the charity and whichpart of the dollar goes to the telemarketer fund-raiser.

If you don't ask, the telemarketer is under no obligation to provide the information. But, if you do ask for such information, the telemarketer must provide accurate information; otherwise, giving you misleading information can be held to be fraudulent.

The Supreme Court ruling stemmed from a case, Madigan vs. Telemarketing Associates Inc., an Illinois firm which raised more than $8 million dollars for the veterans group, VietNow, and pocketed almost 90 percent of the funds for itself. Lisa Madigan, as attorney general, said that it didn't make any sense that a charitable organization can "hide behind the cloak of the 1st Amendment of free speech when they are out there defrauding people."

The Supreme Court was hesitant to rule the case as fraud because it would be difficult to determine at what amount can it be called fraud and what amount can be called a legitimate fee for the fund-raiser to collect. The Court, I'm sure because of the outlandish amount kept by the telemarketing firm, at least ruled that when any solicitation in behalf of a charity is made, the person receiving the call has the right to ask how much of that given to that charity will end up with the charity.

Legitimate charity groups should have no trouble with the ruling. Some of the professional fund-raisers who have used high-pressure calls to solicit funds and then keep an outrageous amount for their own benefit have made it more difficult for legitimate charities to raise funds.

Senior citizens have often been the victims of deceitful solicitation schemes. They should be protected. I believe that publicity given to such cases like the one pursued against the Illinois firm and any other that might take advantage of legitimate charities will reduce reckless abuses of charitable fund-raising.

Remember, citizens, when you get that call, if you ask, they must tell. That's a good first step in cleaning up the violators. We appreciate that Attorney General Madigan, in this early move, has acted in behalf of the consumers in Illinois.

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Haley departure raising questions ith the abrupt departure of Antioch Village Administrator Mike Haley, the political pot is boiling over. Officially a resignation, Haley was surprised by Mayor Tasos Maravelas and left office with an escort. By submitting a letter of resignation, Haley will be able to protect pension benefits logged in previous public service. He is a former mayor of Antioch who followed elective office with long-time employment with the Illinois Secretary of State.

Maravelas deliberately broke up his top management team when he and Haley clashed over policy and procedure. As recently as two months ago, Mayor Maravelas was gushing praise for Haley, who quarterbacked the narrow Maravellas Adding spice to the stew of controversy is the fact that Haley's sister, Mary Haley Turner, won a seat on the village council in the 2003 trustee election.

Advancing the arts

Enthusiasm is mounting in the Lake Villa area for formation of a north Lake County arts center patterned after Libertyville's David Adler Center. County Board Chair Suzi Schmidt, who represents District 3 of Lake Villa and Lindenhurst, indicated that the county would like to be involved. The center is envisioned as an inter-governmental project.

Trouble for Mathias

One of the first projects of the newly organized Democratic women's group may be finding a challenger in the 2004 election to face State Rep. Sid Mathias (R-Buffalo Grove). State Sen. Terry Link (D-Vernon Hills), Lake County Democratic Central Committee chairman, says a "strong woman" is being sought to run against Mathias, who served as mayor of Buffalo Grove before elected to the General Assembly. Democrats consider Mathias a "Play it safe" legislator who brings no leadership to the 53rd District which mostly takes in Cook County territory.

Qualification question

Political observers predict recently appointed Coroner Jim Wipper, a Republican, will face a health professional in the 2004 general election. The theory is that Democrats will make an issue out of qualifications for the administrative position. Wipper is a licensed mortician and a careerist in the office. Other county offices up for election next year include three incumbents, States Atty. Mike Waller and Circuit Clerk Sally Haley: Leaves quickly after meeting with mayor.

Laska: Maybe moving on up in the big leagues.

Coffelt, Republicans and Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer, Democrat.

Praiseworthy

Round Lake Park Mayor Ila Bauer is earning accolades as president of the Lake County Municipal League, the sounding board for Lake County's 53 cities and villages. Moving up in the ranks for future leadership are Libertyville Mayor Duane Laska and Grayslake Mayor Tim Perry. Green Oaks Mayor Tom Adams is the immediate past president.

Long wait

Despite funding problems and uncertainty over the future of the office, Roycealee J. Wood will be sworn in at 10 a.m., Tuesday, July 1, as Lake County Regional Superintendent of Education. A ceremony and open house honoring Wood will take place at the Job Center Building at the College of Lake County Grayslake campus. The term of office coincides with the school year even though Wood was elected a year ago. She is a resident of Lake Bluff. Wood has been holding the office as an appointed successor to Edward Gonwa who retired.

Backing Hynes

In an effort to break out of a potentially large field of primary candidates, Illinois Comptroller Dan Hynes held a press conference last Sunday at Highland Park to announce Lake County supporters in his bid to win the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate. Announced supporters include State Sen. Susan Garrett, State Reps. Karen May and Kathy Ryg, Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer, County Board representatives Angelo Kyle, Carol Spielman and Anne Flanigan Bassi, Round Lake Mayor Bill Gentes, Antioch Township Supervisor Heather Kufalk-Marotta and Libertyville Township Supervisor Betty-Ann Moore.

Tiny little Argyle socks it to us

Editor's note: Jerry Pfarr is on vacation. This is a column he wrote in 2002.

here is a small town out west (I can't recall the name) which greets travelers with a sign that says: "Population, 295 nice people and 5 soreheads."

While motoring in the Rockford area last week we came upon a crossroads with a similar sense of humor: The sign said, "Argyle, next two exits. Population about 87 good people, 4 chickens, 15 goats and one old grouch.'

Checking later, we learned that in the United States there are no cities, towns or villages officially named Argyle. Argyle is, however, a Scottish clan whose tartan is a plaid pattern popular in pairs of socks by that name.

The prankster, or pranksters, behind the Argyle population sign didn't stop there. He, or they, also have erected signs along their little stretch of the road in the manner of the old Burma-Shave gim-

From 1927 to 1963 those signs advertising shaving cream amused Americans on motor trips - -Mom and Pop and the otherwise antsy kids in the back seat. The six signs were spaced 100 paces apart in farmers' fields along the old two-lane highways. The first five that made up the jingle would be followed by a sixth sign with the product name, Burma-Shave.

Along the roadsides there were hundreds of delightful ditties such as these: "His face was smooth ... and cool as ice ... and oh Louise! ... he smelled . .. so nice ... Burma-Shave."

"If hugging . . . on highways . . . is your sport . . . trade in your car ... for a davenport ... Burma-Shave."

Before cars were air-conditioned it was common for a driver to roll down his window and rest his arm

THE PFARR CORNER

Jerry Pfarr

outside the door. Burma-Shave came up with this

"Don't stick . . . your elbow . . . out so far . . . it might go home ... in another car ... Burma-Shave." Driving past Argyle (don't blink, you might miss it) spaced along the roadside are these 12 signs:

"What you are ... about to see ... a Scottish village . . . Hear ye . . . If you . . . slow down a bit . . . you can say . . . you saw it . . . welcome . . . Argyle."

We were in too much of hurry the other day, as usual, but this Argyle mystery deserves another trip and further checking out.

Someone apparently wants to put that little burg on the map and we want to know which citizen is the old grouch.

Folks in America's small towns often show considerable humor in the naming of their little corners of the world. As a result we have places called Boring, Md.; Ding Dog, Texas; Lollipop, Texas; Dull, Tenn.; Fearnot, Pa.; Pancake, Pa.; and Why Not, Neb. Even better known are Santa Claus, Ind.; Gene Autry, Okla.; Tarzan, Texas, and Hell, Mich.

Community slogans also can be fun. How can we not be lured to Stockton, Mo., "the city where the fish are jumpin' and the livin' is easy."

And when it comes to being laid-back, you gotta love Lakeland, Fla., which simply labels itself,

"Florida's Eighth City."? Nothing works like that old soft-sell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What's in a name?

f the four Round Lakes combine, then perhaps a name change would be best as well. I suggest asking the people. Those of us who have lived in Lake County for a while remember the failures of the 1980s to bring the Round Lakes together.

As I remember, the Village of Round Lake residents were the holdouts among those voting. Would it be different now? Perhaps. Many of the "new" people building in the newer subdivisions are from out of the area and they have no idea that the name "Round Lake" was, at one time, synonymous with decay, crime and poverty.

Let's try it and see. See if we the people want to bring the towns together or if we want to remain apart, ask us what names we would like. I suggest looking at our history and proposing names that are important to this area if a name change becomes feasible.

A bright spot

Finally, a bright spot on the horizon. The Illinois State Toll Highway Authority (ISTHA) will be accountable. The new state administration is on the right road. A recent report by the State Auditor General was harsh on ISTHA's mismanagement and ineffective financial planning. Reining in this renegade agency is long overdue. Let's hope this effort is not killed by die-hard tollway and build new roads supporters. I hope legislators remember that their responsibility is to us.

Meanwhile, the Route 53 extension rears up again. Now supporters are looking at private funding. Private parties, including homebuilders, willing to fund this road suggests some individuals will make mega-bucks. Making money is fine, but making mega-bucks building a road that will perpetuate sprawl and aggravate existing problems is immoral. Note another ruse-Rewrite the Route120 Bypass Resolution to extend from Waukegan to the City of McHenry Bypass? Say Route 53.

The public's access to facts is difficult, so they trust. Dismally, that allows fabricators to sell their wares: An example of what they tell you. Cost: $861 million. Truth: Cost: $1.86 billion plus. You're told what they want you to hear. Lying and misrepresenting, to support a position means it's invalid, at least to

For decades, the unfathomable amount of dollars spent on this road could have been used to fund road improvements that relieve congestion, have truly the least negative impacts and are financially possible. Money truly wasted. Support using our money on projects to get us moving. Those supporting Lake County becoming Concrete County (extending Route 53, by any name) either don't have the facts or expect personal gain.

For conceal law

Not in Illinois. It can't possibly happen. There is no loophole within the myriad of anti-gun laws in Illinois. We have the FOID program, this as advertised has successfully prevented felons from, acquiring firearms in this state. No other state requires honest citizens to carry papers to prove their status. Most states have instant background checks. ICAHGV wants you to be assaulted before you can get a defense weapon in your hands. ICAHGV likes hearing reports of more violent crimes than anywhere else.

For about 40 years there has been a well intentioned effort to make all of us potential victims of violent crime. There are well over 20,000 laws that restrict the rights of honest citizens. None have ever stopped a criminal. During the last federal administration over 400,000 incidences of felons handling firearms in licensed dealerships were turned away. The Brady Law. None were prosecuted. According to most state laws and federal law, felons do jail time for even touching firearms or ammunition. Not in modern USA, only good citizens are expected to suffer.

Gary, Ind. used to be murder city USA. Indiana now has concealed carry. Chicago is murder city USA. The violent crime rate always goes up when the rights of good citizens are restricted by benevolent dictator/mayors. The violent crime rate always drops when citizens are allowed to defend themselves.

We in Illinois are in desperate need of Concealed Carry. I laud all legislators who have the common sense to prevent any further erosion of our civil and individual creator granted inalienable rights. Please do remember what your legislators have done to you in protecting or reducing your inalienable individual rights every election.

Horse sense

Darrell May's 126 words, one paragraph letter to Lakeland Newspapers regarding horses made a lot of sense.

With the Lake County Forest Preserve catering to golfers, boaters, hikers, bikers, fishermen (fisherpersons), etc., why can't they cater to the horsy set?

I'm not a horse person either, but horses are smarter than people. People bet on horses, but horses have enough sense not to bet on people. I am the first generation living away from one of Wisconsin's farms.

> Joyce Royer Round Lake Beach

Remember horses

Lake County is the number one horse county in the state, yet most of us leave our county to trail-ride elsewhere. My family does buy the Forest Preserve horse tags ever years (yes, we horse people pay extra on top of our taxes for the privilege of riding the Des Plaines trails), but it is done more as a political statement to remind them that we horse people do exist.

Having an area for horses (which would also be compatible with true hikers) would also help to reduce many of the complaints people have by reducing the number of horses on the Des Plaines. Many people do not like walking, strolling or cycling over hoof prints and around manure. Safety would also be greatly enhanced for all.

A horse trail area would also be fairly cheap and low maintenance, unlike golf courses. We do not need nor want built up limestone paths. We prefer dirt as much as possible. A simple gravel, not blacktop, parking lot for trailers and maybe a porta-potty would be the only other needs. A "Friend of the Trail" group could be easily organized to help with its cleanup and maintenance. This is a common practice at many horse trail areas.

Lastly, wildlife such as deer and turkey are not disturbed by us near like they are with bikes, strollers and the like. This means our impact on the area and its wildlife is minimal and isn't this what "preserve" is really all about?

Condell earns rare top score

Condell Health Care System, Inc., which provides HMO services through Condell Health Network, was one of only 12 medical groups out of 158 that earned all four blue stars under BlueCross BlueShield of Illinois' new Blue Star report released this spring.

Blue Star recognizes medical groups that have documented high levels of performance in providing patient care in accordance with nationally based clinical practice and preventive care guidelines. Blue Cross gives medical groups a blue star if they provided:

Pap smears in 1999-2001 to at least 70 percent of female members between the ages of 21 and 64 who have been enrolled in the HMO plan for at least one year.

Flu shots during the 2001-2002 flu season to at least 35 percent of members who have asthma or diabetes or are age 65 or older. Asthma action plans in 2000 or 2001 to at least 75 percent of asthmatic members.

Blue Cross also gives medical groups a blue star if they tracked 2001 diabetes care, including at least HbA1c blood test results for at least 60 percent of diabetic members between the ages of 18 and 75.

Main entrance opens

Condell opened the main entrance of its new 190,000-square-foot, $90 million expansion for the first time on June 23.

Registration for all hospital services, admissions and all lab and radiology testing now operate out of the hospital's new addition.

Condell's Inner Spa, Illinois' first hospitalbased spa, also opened for business. Appointments for spa services, including manicures, pedicures, massages, facials and hydrotherapy can be booked effective immediately by calling 847-990-5900.

The new Surgical Services Department and New Life Maternity Center will open in July. Other departments that will begin to occupy the new space in stages throughout the rest of the summer include the new coffee shop and gift shop, Human Resources, Finance, Materials Management and Public Relations.

Nicasa elects 6 leaders

Six area civic leaders have been elected to the Board of Directors of Nicasa, a Lake County-based human services agency.

Elected were: Gwen Davis-Gideon, associate director of Trustmark Insurance where she is also a member of the Foundation's board. She is also a member of the boards of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Lake County and HealthReach Clinic.

Clarisol Duque, director of constituent services for U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin's Chicago office where she focuses on outreach efforts to communities throughout Illinois and oversees communication with federal agencies.

Don Millar, director of engineering at Motorola. He is an alumni interviewer for prospective Dartmouth College students and is a soccer and baseball coach for area youth.

James Snow, manager of corporate chemical and biological purchasing at Abbott Laboratories. He has been a football coach for the Libertyville Boys Club and a baseball coach for the Libertyville Little League. He was named Nicasa's volunteer of the year in 2001.

Edward Walters, vice president and controller of Pactiv. He is a volunteer for the PADS homeless shelters in Lake County and the Potato Project of the Society of St. Andrew's, which donates potatoes to shelters. He is an eight-grade Sunday school teacher for his church.

Roycealee Wood, the incoming regional superintendent of schools for Lake County. She is a past president of the Great Lakes Region of the Navy League of the U.S. and a member of numerous civic organizations, including the Rotary Club of Waukegan, the Lake Forest-Lake Bluff League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women. She serves on the boards of directors for such human service organizations as A Safe Place, Central Baptist Youth and Family Counseling Services and the American Cancer Society-Lake County Unit:

"Nicasa is so fortunate to have these outstanding leaders join our board of directors," said Judy Fried, executive director. "They are truly committed to helping our agency improve the quality of life for area residents."

Nicasa, one of the largest substance abuse prevention and treatment agencies in Illinois, was founded in 1966 and is headquartered in Round Lake. Additional program facilities are in Waukegan and Buffalo Grove. The agency also operates the Women's Services center in North Chicago and Bridge House, a Waukegan-based residential facility for men and women recovering from alcoholism and other drug addictions.

She exhorted women to fight for health, education, children's rights, immigration reform and other issues that touch women's lives.

Head Football Coach Andy Bitto called Khayat a "real sparkplug."

"Not only was he a six-sport athlete, but his leadership really pulled everything together as well," said Bitto. "He had the potential to be one of the best athletes to ever attend Carmel."

"He definitely had a lot of charisma," Bitto added. "Plus, he was a straight-A student and he had an unbelievable smile."

Bitto said only hours after hearing of Khayat's death early Sunday morning, a prayer service was held that same evening. "About 500 people attended," said Bitto.

The idea for recognizing such "outstanding seniors" came in 1981, as a tribute to Ann Towey, former President of the Lake County Council for Seniors, who had recently passed away. To date, 301 seniors have been honored for their generosity and kindness to others throughout the 21-year history of this event.

Seniors May Find Proposed Drug Benefit Lacking

AS REPORTED IN THE JUNE 18™ NEW YORK TIMES...

eniors expecting a generous Medicare prescription drug benefit from Congress are likely to be disappointed. Most will find the government paying only a small fraction of their pharmacy bills and far less than most senior citizens have come to expect from private insurance.

According to the former Director of the Congressional Budget Office Robert Reischauer, "I think many will be disappointed because the benefit is so skimpy compared to that most Americans are familiar with."

Both House and Senate bills would require senior citizens to spend a significant amount of their own money in order to receive government benefits. Coverage would disappear after drug costs reached a certain level and then resume only if costs reached a considerably higher plateau.

What's The Answer For Now?

n the other side of the coin, beginning July 1, there is a local Lake County company, Save On Meds, which is fighting to keep prescription medication costs to a minimum. Their mission is to provide an alternative safe and reliable method of securing prescription medications from Canada at reasonable prices. Save On Meds wants to be your advocate for prescription drug savings.

Competitions at all three events will be held in the open, women's, senior, junior and super senior divisions. Top individuals in all divisions at district's will then advance to the world championship finals, scheduled for Oct. 14-18 at Palms Golf Club in Mesquite, Nev.

At the finals, competitor's in the women's, open, senior and super senior divisions will have a chance to earn a share of the $350,000 purse, the largest in the history of the competition.

Sarah Boothe applies the trap while Kelly Dones (left) goes in for the steal. The Lady HoopStars finished 2-3 in the tournament.

The Northern Lake Country Lady HoopStars left the Sixth Annual Milwaukee Metro Classic bruised, smiling, but undefeated. "We didn't play as well as we can but the girls did a lot of good things and are starting to come together as a team. We look forward to going to Notre Dame in early July and hope that we can continue to improve. I was very proud of them and their efforts this weekend!" said head coach Paul Claxton.

Lori Shaw set the tone for the aggressive defense and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Defensive Player. Erin Claxton converted many of the offensive rebounds into points for the Lady HoopStars and was justly named Most Valuable Offensive Player for the tournament.

Other noteable performances for the tournament were turned in by Erin Norwood, who continued to drive to the hoop while drawing the most fouls. Sarah Boothe snared the majority of rebounds for the team, while Rachel Culp disrupted the opponent offense with the most steals. Shana Shepherd had the highest field-goal percentage for the tournament,

The Northern Lake County HoopStar program is a traveling basketball program for boy's and girls grades 4-8. They are based in Gurnee. The Lady HoopStars, now in their second year as a team competing on the seventh-grade level, are coached by Paul Claxton. He is assisted by Joe Shepherd and Terry Culp. Gene Woltjer is the NLC HoopStar founder and program administrator.

Sports collectors will once again be filling the floors of the Donald E. Stephens Convention Center in Rosemont for the SCD SportsFest Collector's Show to be held from June 27-29. Former Chicago Cubs great Ryne Sandberg is scheduled to make an appearance, along with numerous other superstar athletes during the three-day show. Sandberg will signing autographs on June 28 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.—Photos courtesy of Krause Publications.

SportsFest is June 27-29

A star-studded autograph lineup featuring NFL legend Joe Montana, the baseball Sammy Sosa hit for his 500th career homer, the first-ever personally licensed LeBron James trading card from The Upper Deck Company, and the participation of the top selling and buying dealers in the country should make the sixth annual SCD (Sports Collectors Digest) SportsFest in Rosemont the best ever.

For the first time in collecting history, four major collectibles shows will be held during the same weekend under the same roof. The Collectors Expo/Chicago—featuring SCD SportsFest, the 29th annual International Gift & Collectible Expo, 22nd Annual MidAmerica Coin Expo and inaugural Windy City Antique Show—is slated for June 27-29 at the Donald E. Stephens Convention Center in Rosemont.

Each show will be totally separate from the others. The SCD SportsFest show hours are 10 a.m.-8 p.m. on Fri., June 27, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Sat., June 28, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sun., June 29.

Approximately 30,000 collectors, 650 dealers and 70 manufacturers are expected to converge on Rosemont for this history-making event. Collectors Expo/Chicago is designed for families to arrive together, go their separate ways to the various shows, and meet back later for show and tell. Exhibitors will offer sports cards and memorabilia, contemporary gifts and collectibles, art, antiques and vintage collectibles, rare and collectible coins, paper money and numismatic-related collectibles.

Autograph guests who have committed to SCD SportsFest include former and current NFL stars Joe Montana, Mike Singletary, Kordell Stewart, Tony Dorsett, Junior Seau, Terrell Owens, Ray Lewis, Tim Brown, Brad Johnson, Mike Alstott and Roger Craig, and former college football star Johnny Lattner.

Former Major League Baseball players scheduled to sign include Ryne Sandberg, Pete Rose, Don Larsen, Ralph Kiner, Bobby Thomson and Ralph Branca. Representing the NBA will be former players Robert Parish and Jon McGlocklin.

Among the many items on display at SCD SportsFest will be the baseball Sammy Sosa launched for his 500th home run April 4 in Cincinnati. Zachary Kirk, a University of Missouri student who caught the ball, plans to sell it following SCD SportsFest through agent Michael Barnes, president of Barnes Sports Group in St. Louis.

The Upper Deck Company will randomly insert 4,000 of the first-ever personally licensed LeBron James trading cards in the giveaways it distributes at its booth.

Superior Auctions will bring a number of rare cards, including a 1910 T206 Ty Cobb, 1934 Goudey Lou Gehrig, 1948 Leaf Satchel Paige and 1952 Topps Bobby Thomson.

The hottest card game for kids and adults—Yu-Gi-Oh!—will provide plenty of thrills at SCD SportsFest, thanks to Upper Deck. A Yu-Gi-Oh! tournament will be held from 2-5 p.m. on June 27, from 2-4 p.m. on June 28, and from 2-4 p.m. on the shows final day, June 29.

Like in previous years, KidStore will offer a variety of collectibles to children 12- and-under at drastically reduced prices, thanks to contributions from SCD SportsFest exhibitors. The Walter and Connie Payton Foundation will be the beneficiary of KidStore sales this year.

Tickets for the SCD SportsFest are $10 for a one-day ticket, $8 each for a one-day ticket to the International Gift & Collectible Expo and/or Windy City Antique Show, and $5 for a three-day ticket for the MidAmerica Coin Expo. Also available is a $15 three-day, all access ticket that allows entry into each of the four shows. Fans can get tickets by logging on to www.collect.com or by calling the toll-free number at 877-746-9757.

Hippotherapy—There's something about horses

That on earth is hippotherapy? It's certainly not in my comput-er "spell check," and most people probably have never heard of it. You might think it has something to do with treating hippopotami. Now wouldn't that be a very unusual episode for the Animal Planet Network?

In actuality, "hippotherapy" has nothing to do with hippos. You've probably heard stories of people, especially children, with physical, emotional and developmental disabilities who have made tremendous strides with the help of a horse.

In a previous column, I wrote about the remarkable healing powers and benefits of animals. I highlighted the significance of the fact that it is the medical community that has in the last decade come to recognize our important connection to the world of companion animals. Yet historically, when it comes to horses, the ancient Greeks recognized their therapeutic benefits over two thousand years ago. In modern times, it was shortly after World War II when therapeutic riding, hippotherapy, made its entrance in Great Britain. That country, in an attempt to find activities for thousands of disabled veterans, put some of them on horses as a recreational activity. It was soon discovered that riding a horse had a significant healing advantage.

cessing, but also as if by magic, completely change the lives of the patient and the family.

It was Winston Churchill who said, "There is something about the outside of a horse that is good for the inside of a man."

What is it about the horse? How does being in the environment of a horse, getting on top and just walking on a horse do this? Is it the irresistible power, the majesty, the spirituality of the horse that turns us on? Is it their beauty that touches our souls and helps heal us?

I asked Donna Ewing.

In the archival files of our paper, I discovered a special report featuring Donna Ewing, President and founder of HARPS, the "Hooved Animal Rescue and Protection Society". Donna, who I have known personally for over 12 years, and who I refer to as "the grand duchess of the horse protection movement states, "The outside of the horse has also been proven to be good for the inside of a child. There is no reason not to help both". Ewing's humane work with horses that has included abuse prevention through education and legislation has now expanded to helping at-risk children.

I drove to Donna's office in Barrington to meet with her in order to find out what makes horses so special. She had me watch an amazing video of the Giant Steps Therapeutic Equestrian Center, founded in 1998 by Robert Pope and his wife, Lee Justice. On 23 acres, located in a beautiful valley in Petaluma, Calif., 40 miles north of San Francisco, individuals who are physically or emotionally challenged, as well as youths who are considered to be at-risk, come together in a safe and secure environment to be cared for by a special kind of therapist—a horse.

Donna explained to me, "It's another level of communication. Horses can feel and sense the very soul and the very love of the person. That is why they're so good for helping autistic children who are so locked in their own world. Only the spirit of the horse can penetrate that world. It's a world that no one else but the horse is able to touch."

Amazingly enough, science supports this. As an actual form of medical treatment, hippotherapy uses the multidimensional movement of the horse that influences the patient, rather than the patient influencing the horse. The horse becomes a moving, dynamic therapeutic instrument for specially trained physical, occupational or speech therapists who work with the patient. It's the natural action of the horse, along with traditional therapy, that does such things as improve muscle tone, activate muscle action, mobilize joints, and increase sensory motor integration. Physically, balance, posture, mobility and function can be improved. Psychologically, hippotherapy can improve cognitive, behavioral and communication functions in patients of all ages.

Just a few of the conditions positively impacted include autism, accident and head trauma, cerebral palsy, Downs syndrome, multiple sclerosis, scoliosis, spina bifida, muscular dystrophy,-and even the crippling effects of a stroke.

Now I know what my doctor was talking about almost three years ago when he advised me to get a horse. In writing this article, I asked my wonderful riding instructor, John Garvey, who is working miracles with me, to relate his feelings about riding horses. In John's words, "Handicapped or not, horses are appealing to people—the horse is a beautiful creature. It's poeticgraceful, spiritual and has a sense of being very comfortable both in the wild and in our environment. It seems to embellish everything with qualities that attract. Like a mother cradling a baby, we bond when we ridewe become one with the horse."

American Cancer Society Says Skin protection saves lives

Majority of skin cancers are preventable by routinely shielding skin from the sun's damaging ultraviolet (UV) rays. Yet most Americans aren't doing enough to protect themselves. They only use sunscreen at the pool but often forget to reapply. Most forget about wearing hats and long-sleeved shirts or seeking the cool relief of shade.

To prevent skin cancer, the American Cancer Society Illinois Division recommends avoiding the sun between 10 am and 4 pm, wearing sun-protective clothing and sunglasses, using sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher, and avoiding artificial sources of ultraviolet light such as sun lamps and tanning booths.

Adopting sun safe habits does not take a lot of time, and it can be lifesaving. Melanoma is one of the most preventable forms of cancer and the second leading cancer among 13 to 30 year olds. More than 1,400 new cases of melanoma will be diagnosed this year in Illinois and more than 290 will die. The vast majority of these cases are due to unprotected and excessive ultraviolet radiation exposure.

George Doran of Libertyville is a third generation Irishman with fair skin. He has been diagnosed with melanoma not once, but twice. The 65-year old said his oncologist asked if he remembered his first sunburn. "I was brought up on the East coast on the ocean, so I had to say that my first sunburn was the same time I had my first glass of water," Doran said.

A mom's camp dilemma

Hi Dr. Sherri,

I hope you don't mind the informality, but that is how we refer to you in our home. My question involves summer camp. My son is 10 and wants to go away to over night camp. I'm against this idea and wondered if you believe that a certain age group is good for that. I don't want to be unpopular with my son, but I also have a lot of reservations about him going away for that period of time but don't want to stunt him socially. D.D.

Hi D.D.,

PARENT'S PLACE

all! In fact, I love it! Regarding camp, my major problem here is that I don't know how your son behaves. I think that the decision to send a child to overnight camp is more about maturity, behavior and decision making than age. Obviously you want to make sure the child is old enough to fend for himself, but maturity plays more of a role. If your son is very immature, overnight camp may not be the right option, however, if he is very mature and a good decision maker, it might not be so bad. I hate to be so vague, but the reality here is that you ultimately have to make the decision as to whether your son is really appropriate for going away. Let me say, though, that being popular with your child should be the last reason you allow him to go. Parents make many decisions for their children that are very unpopular with their children. Many times, the decisions are still good even though the child does not agree with them. As kids, we don't always know what is good

Another issue that would be important regarding overnight camp is the type of supervision that would be available there. If it is a familiar place that many of your friends have sent their kids, than it might be more comforting to you than if you have never had any inside information about it before. Let's face it! Unfortunately this is a scary world and there are many scary people in it. Parenting involves the need to sift out those situations that could be either too unsupervised or outright dangerous.

There are many great camps out there, both overnight and day camps. If you are not comfortable with overnight camp, then you need to go with your gut feeling. Maybe day camp can work better and make everyone comfortable. Regardless of where you send your child, make sure that ahead of time, you thoroughly check it out to be sure that everyone is comfortable with the surroundings and the staff.

You should also know that I never went to overnight camp and turned out just fine and well adjusted! Day camp was plenty and worked well. It may for you too! Whatever you decide, enjoy your summer!

CANCER

Doran was first diagnosed with melanoma in 1993 after seeking treatment from his general practitioner, a podiatrist, and finally an oncologist for what he thought was a sliver under his big toenail. When the biopsy came back as festering melanoma his right toe had to be amputated. Four years later the melanoma had traveled to his right leg and Doran underwent a radical groin dissection.

"I visit the oncologist and get lots of checkups. I've had a number of cancers, removed, probably 70-80, some delicate ones," Doran said. "When I see young people that go to the tanning spas and like to go to Florida and get burned I just cringe because someday it's going to come back to haunt them. I love the sun, but I consider the sun quietly to be my enemy."

In addition to skin protection, early detection can also save lives. The early detection of skin cancer improves survival because surgical treatment in the early stages can provide a cure.

"People are paying more attention to the message of early detection and are examining their skin themselves," said Dr. June Robinson, author of a recent report on melanoma in Illinois and past president of the American Cancer Society Illinois Division

Board of Directors.

The recently released report titled Cutaneous Melanoma in Illinois: Change in Clinical Presentation over 20 Years shows the midsection of the body as the most common site of cancer for both sexes; this represents a shift for women from the 1970's when most cancer was reported in the leg and hip area. This increase may be related to bathing suit fashion and total body exposure with indoor tanning.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. The Society's Illinois Division has more than 140,000 volunteers and 250 staff members fighting cancer in the state. American Cancer Society Says Skin protection saves lives we become one with the horse."

Majority of skin cancers are preventable by routinely shielding skin from the sun's damaging ultraviolet (UV) rays. Yet most Americans aren't doing enough to protect themselves. They only use sunscreen at the pool but often forget to reapply. Most forget about wearing hats and long-sleeved shirts or seeking the cool relief of shade.

To prevent skin cancer, the American Cancer Society Illinois Division recommends avoiding the sun between 10 am and 4 pm, wearing sun-protective clothing and sunglasses, using sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher, and avoiding artificial sources of ultraviolet light such as sun lamps and tanning booths.

Adopting sun safe habits does not take a lot of time, and it can be lifesaving. Melanoma is one of the most preventable forms of cancer and the second leading cancer among 13 to 30 year olds. More than 1,400 new cases of melanoma will be diagnosed this year in Illinois and more than 290 will die. The vast majority of these cases are due to unprotected and excessive ultraviolet radiation exposure.

George Doran of Libertyville is a third generation Irishman with fair skin. He has been diagnosed with melanoma not once, but twice. The 65-year old said his oncologist asked if he remembered his first sunburn. "I was brought up on the East coast on the ocean, so I had to say that my first sunburn was the same time I had my first glass of water," Doran said.

A mom's camp dilemma

HI Dr. Sherri,

I hope you don't mind the informality, but that is how we refer to you in our home. My question involves summer camp. My son is 10 and wants to go away to over night camp. I'm against this idea and wondered if you believe that a certain age group is good for that. I don't want to be unpopular with my son, but I also have a lot of reservations about him going away for that period of time but don't want to stunt him socially. D.D.

Hi D.D.,

First, no problem about the informality. A lot of people call me that and I don't mind at all! In fact, I love it! Regarding camp, my major problem here is that I don't know how your son behaves. I think that the decision to send a child to overnight camp is more about maturity, behavior and decision making than age. Obviously you want to make sure the child is old enough to fend for himself, but maturity plays more of a role. If your son is very immature, overnight camp may not be the right option, however, if he is very mature and a good decision maker, it might not be so bad. I hate to be so vague, but the reality here is that you ultimately have to make the decision as to whether your son is really appropriate for going away. Let me say, though, that being popular with your child should be the last reason you allow him to go. Parents make many decisions for their children that are very unpopular with their children. Many times, the decisions are still good even though the child does not agree with them. As kids, we don't always know what is good for us.

Another issue that would be important regarding overnight camp is the type of supervision that would be available there. If it is a familiar place that many of your friends have sent their kids, than it might be more comforting to you than if you have never had any inside information about it before. Let's face it! Unfortunately this is a scary world and there are many scary people in it. Parenting involves the need to sift out those situations that could be either too unsupervised or outright dangerous.

There are many great camps out there, both overnight and day camps. If you are not comfortable with overnight camp, then you need to go with your gut feeling. Maybe day camp can work better and make everyone comfortable. Regardless of where you send your child, make sure that ahead of time, you thoroughly check it out to be sure that everyone is comfortable with the surroundings and the staff.

You should also know that I never went to overnight camp and turned out just fine and well adjusted! Day camp was plenty and worked well. It may for you too! Whatever you decide, enjoy your summer!

CANCER

Doran was first diagnosed with melanoma in 1993 after seeking treatment from his general practitioner, a podiatrist, and finally an oncologist for what he thought was a sliver under his big toenail. When the biopsy came back as festering melanoma his right toe had to be amputated. Four years later the melanoma had traveled to his right leg and Doran underwent a radical groin dissection.

"I visit the oncologist and get lots of checkups. I've had a number of cancers, removed, probably 70-80, some delicate ones," Doran said. "When I see young people that go to the tanning spas and like to go to Florida and get burned I just cringe because someday it's going to come back to haunt them. I love the sun, but I consider the sun quietly to be my enemy."

In addition to skin protection, early detection can also save lives. The early detection of skin cancer improves survival because surgical treatment in the early stages can provide a

"People are paying more attention to the message of early detection and are examining their skin themselves," said Dr. June Robinson, author of a recent report on melanoma in Illinois and past president of the American Cancer Society Illinois Division Board of Directors.

The recently released report titled Cutaneous Melanoma in Illinois: Change in Clinical Presentation over 20 Years shows the midsection of the body as the most common site of cancer for both sexes; this represents a shift for women from the 1970's when most cancer was reported in the leg and hip area. This increase may be related to bathing suit fashion and total body exposure with indoor tanning.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. The Society's Illinois Division has more than 140,000 volunteers and 250 staff members fighting cancer in the state. Culture Will Again Define Needed Employee Skills

By Scott T. Fleischmann There have been many times in history where culture has defined the skills needed by workers, who have then reinvented the culture. The first that comes to mind is the move from hunting and gathering to an agricultural society. The earliest people gathered nuts, berries, fruits and vegetables. They supplemented that nourishment with hunted wild game. At some point, they decided that they could more easily harvest plants that were

So, they started gardens and orchards on the land surrounding the family abode. They then domesticated livestock. They still made their own dothing, made their own tools and built their own homes. At that point they lived and worked in the same environment leaving only for social events.

Soon however, some people started to specialize. Some became farmers and sold produce. Those who were skilled at raising animals sold meat. Others made jams, canned products and made beverages to sell. Many of these products were traded to others for different products. The population was still disbursed and most people lived in rural areas.

The next change occurred as a part of the industrial revolution. Workers were needed in factories to make products and to staff. the factories. These jobs were more centralized. Subsequently many people moved to cities to get these jobs. That trend prevalled throughout most of the twentieth century. However, as these processes became more efficient, fewer people were needed to produce the products.

About mid-way through the century the advent of the computer spawned the information age. The amount of information needed to send rockets into space required high speed information processing. Those marketing the products that needed more information to identify other uses for these products in order to expand the market. They also wanted to identify needs for other products and services so that those business could be expanded and diversified. Over time, more colleges offered courses in software development and computer engineering. Information became more available. However, we still need to work to find the information that we need, and most of us now receive an overwhelming amount of Information than we do not want. People are looking for ways to eliminate information that is not need. Junk mail, telephone sales calls and unwanted e-mail has become a serious nuisance. n addition, much of the available information is harmful. Individuals and organizations are looking for creative ways to protect against computer viruses. Parents want to protect their children the from violence, pomography and deviant behavior that is prevalent in movies and television. Much of the music, radio programming, and written media offend people. Yet we all define that which is offensive differently and, thankfully, in America we still defend freedom of speech. The direction of course is to give every individual the tools he or she needs to get the needed information, eliminate the unneeded, and protect against offensive information. That cultural trend is creating an exciting industry and new job opportunities. We will look at those more closely in the next column.
